

RALPH
Mc GILL'An Epoch
Has Ended—'

Bonn, Germany: "This is something like the end of the Eisenhower years in America," said a German editor on the morning after the Adenauer party had failed to win the majority necessary to govern. "It is going to be a painful time. There is doubt about whether the chancellor will be retained. I think he will be."

"Indeed, if there were not an Adenauer it would now be necessary to invent one. In America your Mr. Eisenhower could depart from office and leave the vast and awesome decisions, which had been delayed or pushed aside, for his successor. None wishes to be Adenauer's successor until some of these agonizing German questions have been answered. So I think they will keep the old man for a year or so."

The Free Democrats, who hold the balance of power, issued an official statement which seemed to sustain such a belief. It has meaning, too, for the Western countries, particularly the United States. It said:

"An epoch of German postwar history has ended. The coming months and years will destroy many illusions and place extraordinary demands on our people."

The Meaning

This sounds, on the surface, like the most trite of post-election statements. But the Germans know what it means and the people of the United States will do well also to comprehend it. To the Germans the FDP was saying that the dread day of accepting the Oder-Neisse border as Germany's frontier with Poland was soon to be an actual confrontation, and not merely an old and recurring nightmare which didn't look so hideous in the light of day. The FDP announcement also said to the Germans that some form of de facto recognition of the East German regime is presently inescapable and that unification of Germany is now impossible.

And this is true. These are the times when decisions must be made on problems which have existed since 1945. It is folly, and not intellectually honest, to act as if Laos, Berlin, East Germany, the Oder-Neisse line, and other painful issues are new. The eight Eisenhower years saw them pushed aside in America, just as they were in Germany. Both peoples have been kept in the dark.

There was a time—when the United States had the A-bomb monopoly—that we quietly could have said to the Russians, "Sorry, gentlemen, but those very stupid errors of not setting out a corridor to Berlin and determining the borders of Poland and Germany, were in part our doing. But now we must rectify them. We do not wish to use the bomb, so we trust you will understand."

But, that we did not do. Now there is no monopoly. The military and moral forces of Europe cannot compel such a settlement.

Our Promise

Today, we will keep our promise about Berlin, even if it means shooting. Since the Russians apparently understand this, and because Gen. Lucius Clay is a man of decision, hope grows there will be no war over either that city or the East German treaty.

Germany will be unified one day. The man who can most easily bring this about is Mr. K. If Germany should come upon chaotic days, as does not seem likely, he might be able to bring it off. Meanwhile, the so-called status quo must be subjected to negotiations which, it is hoped, will give West Germany the opportunity to grow stronger in freedom and material success. This will include some de facto recognition of East Germany on a basis which would not give Herr Ulbricht control of Berlin.

These decisions must be reached—or we shall fight. Meanwhile, since to fight is such a ghastly thing to consider, we need to quit talking in circles. And some of our elder statesmen, who were a part of the failures of the past, would do well to do the same. The years since 1945 have never really been status quo. Decisions which should have been made were not. But it is no good blaming the past. What we can understand is that "an epoch of German postwar history has ended."

Bandit Gets
$1,269 in Nitro Job

By KEELER McCARTNEY

An extremely nervous gunman threatened to blow up a finance office with nitroglycerin Monday morning and escaped with $1,269, police said.

The latest in a series of one-man robberies occurred at 10:30 a.m. at the Century Finance Co., 117 Tenth St., NE.

Lt. J. H. Barnes said the gunman answered the description and used the same methods as the man who two weeks ago robbed a loan office in the Moreland Avenue shopping center of $434.

William C. Langford, manager of the Century Finance office, and Jack C. Fetter, a collection agent, were in the office when the tall man in a black suit, white shirt, no tie and badly in need of a haircut, entered.

He asked about arranging a loan, Barnes said, and Langford directed him to an information booth to fill out the necessary papers. Fetter went over to help.

Fetter said the man appeared very nervous and perspiration popped out over his face. When they reached the amount of the proposed loan, Fetter said the man told him:

"Every dime you've got. I've got a .38 pistol pointed at you under this table."

Fetter said the man removed a medicine vial of white liquid from the lapel pocket of his coat and warned:

"You know what this is. It's nitroglycerin. If anything happens we'll all go together."

Fetter said the bandit dropped

TOCCOA FALLS—The 50-year-old faith of an institution dedicated to the work of God through youth was renewed here Monday as Dr. Billy Graham memorialized the founder of the Toccoa Falls Institute.

Among Dr. Graham's listeners were Sen. Herman Talmadge and Rep. Phil Landrum — both of whom also paid tribute to the late Dr. Richard A. Forrest, who founded the institute with a capital of $10 in 1911.

Graham spoke to a crowd of several thousand people who braved a hot Georgia sun and sweltering temperature to hear him.

Graham cited President John F. Kennedy's speech to the United Nations Monday morning, and said: "The men now talking about terrifying events of the future are no longer the preachers but the statesmen, the scientists. . . . The Soviet Union is challenging the West with a worldwide conspiracy to destroy freedom and religion."

He said that America could not win this battle by "voting billions of dollars—you can't buy everything. Our prestige is low—very low—because the neutral world is afraid to speak out against communism because they think the Communists can win the next war and that we are decadent."

Graham then outlined the ways in which he feared America was sliding downhill.

"Are we standing today watching a nation die?" he asked the sweltering crowd. "We read about it in history, but we can't believe it is happening to us."

He said that the "termites are

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—President John F. Kennedy's speech to the U.N. General Assembly Monday won overwhelming approval from a great majority of delegates. But the Soviet Union and its Communist bloc supporters refused to say a good word for it.

Kennedy was applauded six times during the 38-minute speech and observers agreed that he would have received more if his timing had been better.

Western reaction was the most enthusiastic, but praise called from leaders of the so-called non-aligned nations as well.

Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister, said he wanted to study the speech. He is expected to give his reaction when he addresses the 99-nation Assembly Tuesday afternoon.

Most all other Communist bloc delegates took their cue from Gromyko and remained silent. Eduard Mezincescu, deputy foreign minister from Romania, said that Kennedy's new disarmament program is "a good one for differing." He did not elaborate.

Sir Patrick Dean, Britain's permanent U.N. representative, said the speech was very good. French Ambassador Armand Berard declared: "It was an important, impressive speech. I appreciate it very much."

Irish Ambassador Frederick H. Boland, president of the last General Assembly: "It was a fine speech, forceful in the right places and not provocative in any manner."

Jaja Wachuku, foreign minister of Nigeria and one of the leaders in the newly independent African nations, called it a "good, realistic speech filled with practical suggestions."

URGES "PEACE RACE"
Kennedy Speaks at U.N.Bonn Faith
Shaken by Clay's Stand

By SYDNEY GRUSON

BONN—In West Germany today, the word of the United States is not believed.

As far as West Germans are concerned, the remarks of Gen. Lucius D. Clay in West Berlin Friday night about the necessity of accepting the "reality" of two Germanys confirmed the suspicion that the U.S. policy on Germany was changing. Clay is President John F. Kennedy's personal representative in West Berlin.

No amount of denials or assertions that "we believe in and support the reunification of Germany," as Clay said Saturday night, are likely to overcome the impact of his original off-the-cuff remarks at a cocktail party to meet the press.

In West Germany's present mood, the United States will be judged by what it does at the negotiating table with the Soviet Union and not by assurances about its intentions.

The impact of Clay's "two-Germans" remark would not have been so overpowering had it not followed recurring stories in American newspapers that the United States was prepared to make major concessions at West Germany's expense in the negotiations.

The reaction to all this in West Germany today is on two levels.

The first, and possibly the more important in the long run, is emotional—the view of the ordinary man who does not follow

Calls for Peace Race,
Immediate Test Ban

By MERRIMAN SMITH

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—President John F. Kennedy said Monday the United States would use any means including nuclear arms to preserve its rights in West Berlin but tempered his tough stand by offering a comprehensive disarmament program to insure world peace.

Kennedy, in his first policy speech to the U.N. Assembly, challenged Russia to a "peace race" that would call for an immediate end to nuclear testing. He said the West was not committed to a rigid formula for settling Berlin's future and suggested a free vote.

REJECTS TROIKA

He flatly rejected Russia's "troika" plan of three secretaries general, each with veto power, to succeed the late Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld. He said to do so would "replace order with anarchy, action with paralysis and confidence with confusion."

Appealing to the small and "uncommitted" powers to preserve the unity of the United Nations, Kennedy said:

"The secretary general, in a very real sense, is the servant of this Assembly. Diminish his authority and you diminish the authority of the only body where all nations, regardless of power, are equal and sovereign. Until all the powerful are just, the weak will be secure only in the strength of this General Assembly."

APPLAUDED 6 TIMES

Interrupted six times for applause in his 40-minute speech, the President made these other points:

1—The United Nations is divided not into three forces, but two, one trying to build a peaceful world and the other seeking to undermine the organization.

2—Disarmament negotiations should "resume promptly, and continue without interruption until an entire program for general and

By JOHN W. FINNEY

WASHINGTON—President John F. Kennedy's speech at the United Nations was applauded enthusiastically on Capitol Hill Monday, but beneath the public praise ran an undertone of Republican reservations.

The praise centered around the President's firm stand on Berlin, the proposal for general and complete disarmament, and his opposition to "troika" control over the United Nations.

Statements of approval were issued by leaders on both sides of the political aisle. Their tenor was that the speech presented an eloquent message of hope and principles for peace and a forceful defense of the U.S. position in Berlin and the United Nations.

Within the privacy of their cloakrooms, however, many Republicans tempered their open approval with words of caution and misgivings.

In their private comments to colleagues, Republicans argued that while the President had set forth a laudatory statement of principles, words at this point were not going to impress the Russians or solve world problems. There was also grumbling among Republicans that the speech represented little more than another

Britain and West Germany promptly endorsed Monday night the new U.S. disarmament plan President John F. Kennedy presented to the U.N. General Assembly while challenging the Soviet Union to a "peace race."

Moscow radio and the official Soviet news agency Tass reported initially without comment only that Kennedy had addressed the 99-nation assembly and "dwelt on the activity of the United Nations, the question of disarmament, the so-called Berlin crisis and the question of colonialism." (Story on Page 10.)

A British Foreign Office statement in London said the U.S. plan for gradual and inspected steps toward complete and general disarmament had Britain's "full and enthusiastic support."

In Bonn, a West German government statement said: "The plan represents a realistic and practicable basis for negotiations. The government of West Germany, although it is not a member of the United Nations, stands

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Wealthy sportsman Fuller E. Callaway III disclosed Monday that his wife, Jenny Ann, daughter of actress Ingrid Bergman, has left him after 20 months of marriage.

Callaway, a member of the La-Grange, Ga., textile family, who returned recently from Tahiti aboard his 96-foot racing yacht Morning Star, said, "I'm not seeking a divorce from her, nor do I know that she is seeking one from me."

"This may come to pass," he said, "but it's up to Jenny. You'll have to get her to confirm it."

Friends of the beautiful, 22-year-old Mrs. Callaway said, however, that she planned to study drama at Stanford University and wants to end her marriage to Callaway.

U.S. Introduces Plan for Total Disarmament

By SAM POPE BREWER

(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—The United States offered the General Assembly Monday a detailed and comprehensive "program for general and complete disarmament in a peaceful world."

The essence of the plan is immediate and continuing negotiation to end nuclear tests and the production and spread of nuclear weapons and to reduce armed forces drastically. It differs from past proposals in that it tries to telescope the process and proposes wider bans. It also drops past U.S. insistence on complete acceptance of one phase before another is negotiated.

The program is a detailed plan for carrying out the principle proclaimed by President John F. Kennedy before the Assembly earlier in the day of "dismantling the national capacity to wage war."

It has been put before the Assembly as a "declaration" rather than a proposed resolution. The aim was to give the 99 nations a basis for discussion, rather than a firm resolution that they must accept or reject.

Last Wednesday, the United States and the Soviet Union issued a joint declaration of principles on the question of disarmament, after a series of talks between John J. McCloy, the President's disarmament adviser and Valerian A. Zorin, Soviet representative at the United Nations. Monday's document went into steps for carrying out those principles.

The program offers no solution for the fundamental difference in views that has blocked progress: What the U.S. views as indispensable inspection of existing armaments and arms production is described by the Soviet Union as "legalized espionage."

The United States feels that there is no proof of disarmament in checking the number of weapons destroyed if there is no way of knowing how many remain or what new ones are being produced.

Moscow has maintained that the U.S. form of inspection would constitute "control of armament" rather than control of disarmament. This point was made by Zorin in a letter to McCloy after their talks and in the report by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to the General Assembly, reported Sunday from Moscow.

President Kennedy summarized the new program in six steps:

1. An immediate ban on nuclear tests, signed by all nations.
 2. A halt in the production of fissionable materials for use in weapons or their transfer to any nation that now lacks such weapons.
 3. Prohibition of transferring control over nuclear weapons to nations that do not have them.
 4. Avoidance of preparing new battlegrounds in outer space.
 5. Gradual destruction of existing nuclear weapons.
 6. And end to unlimited testing and production of strategic nuclear delivery vehicles (ballistic missiles) and their gradual destruction.
- In the past, the United States has always wanted one agreed phase of disarmament to be carried out before another was discussed.

A major difference in the new plan is that the United States has let it be known that it is prepared to negotiate on a broad basis and settle any question on which agreement can be reached.

The new document calls for a program to bring total disarmament as rapidly as possible "in stages containing balanced, phased and safe-guarded measures, with each measure and stage to be carried out in an agreed period of time." No specific time limit for any phase was suggested.

The program would involve three stages, ending with all nuclear weapons and national armies abolished and all other weapons in the hands of the United Nations forces and local police forces.

A prerequisite, however, was said to be that compliance with disarmament obligations must be "effectively verified" to insure that "retained armed forces and armament do not exceed agreed levels at any stage." That is the point the Soviet Union has just rejected again in the last talks.

Pay Package in GM Formula Offered to Union by Ford

By DAMON STETSON

(Copyright 1961 By The New York Times Co.)

DETROIT—The Ford Motor Co. offered the United Automobile Workers Monday an economic package closely paralleling terms of the union's recent settlement with the General Motors Corp.

Malcolm L. Denise, vice president for labor relations of Ford, said the company and union should be able to reach a complete settlement within two weeks. But he said local issues, which precipitated strikes at GM, presented "a more serious obstacle to complete settlement than in past Ford negotiations."

Workers returning to jobs here. Story on Page 6.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president said he did not think the company and the union would need two weeks to reach an agreement. But he made it clear that the union was not satisfied with some details of the Ford offer, even though it was similar in most respects to the terms on which the UAW settled with GM.

Meanwhile, the union's international executive board ordered that all local walkouts at GM plants be ended and that strikers return to their jobs. A national settlement between the union and GM was reached last Wednesday.

Picketing continued, however, at a Fisher Body plant near Pittsburgh, pending a vote Monday night by members of the local on an agreement reached here Sunday.

This plant produces body stampings for all lines of GM cars. A continuation of the strike there could affect the nationwide operations of GM and could mean "deep trouble" for the company, a spokesman said.

The company also reported that picketing continued Monday at the guide lamp plant in Anderson, Ind., but that pickets were withdrawn Monday at the Delco-Remy plant there.

GM built Chevrolet, Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac cars Monday, but no Cadillacs. A company official said there would probably be a lot of "stop-and-go" operations this week until parts shortages were overcome and pipelines filled again.

Ford and the UAW have been carrying on routine negotiations since June for a new contract to cover the company's 120,000 hourly workers. But serious bargaining was delayed four weeks ago when the union designated GM as its first "target" in the current auto negotiations.

No real progress on major issues in the Ford negotiations was possible, Denise said, while the union was concentrating on GM.

Integration Suit Asks Closing of Florida Schools

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)—A law suit seeking to shut down all Florida public schools pending a statewide vote on integration was filed Monday in the State Supreme Court.

The suit, asking for a writ of mandamus ordering the State Cabinet Board of Education to close the schools, was filed by Bill Hendrix, Clearwater, one-time Grand Dragon of the Florida Ku Klux Klan.

No immediate hearing was set. The suit followed integration this fall of a number of schools in Dade, Broward and Volusia Counties.

Conferees on Aid $100 Million Apart, Break Off Talks

By FELIX BELAIR JR.

(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—House and Senate conferees late Monday broke off their fourth round of negotiations on President John F. Kennedy's $4 billion foreign aid appropriation.

After meeting nearly three hours in an attempt to reach a compromise figure, Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., announced that "we are no nearer agreement now than when we began these meetings." The meetings started last week.

Actually, less than $100 million separated the groups. But so adamant were some Senate negotiators on a minimum $4 billion appropriation that they talked openly of reporting their disagreement to the Senate with a request to be discharged.

TALKS OF DELAY

At the same time Passman, a chairman of the House conferees, spoke of seeking a further continuing resolution designed to postpone consideration of the money measure until next January.

Should the senators report back their disagreement to that body it would then be in order to name conferees with instructions to insist on the Senate position. In that event the entire controversy would be thrown onto the House floor on a question whether to concur in the Senate's position or remain steadfast.

The Senate could appoint new conferees without instruction, but this is considered highly unlikely.

Several senators indicated the conferees were prepared to force a showdown vote on the House floor anticipating repudiation of the Passman stand.

QUORUM NEED

One difficulty was the possible absence of a House quorum. Many members had left anticipating adjournment last Saturday and only about 300 of the 437 members answered a quorum call then. A quorum is a simple majority.

However, the majority leader, Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, notified Democratic whips to make certain that a working majority would be on hand Tuesday to force the showdown. He had been in touch with key Senate conferees during the day to urge that they insist on an appropriation of at least $4 billion for the substantive program requested by the President.

There was a difference of $275 million between the Senate and House negotiators as they came together at 5 p.m. Monday. The senators had agreed to cut their figure from $4,196,600,000 to $4,034,000,000. The House conferees agreed to increase their figure from $3,657,500,000 to $3,777,000,000.

COMPROMISE OFFERS

During the three-hour session there were several separate compromise offers after the groups met separately on each compromise attempt.

The heart of the controversy involved a question of whether the Senate's minimum $4 billion figure should include $30 million to establish a permanent Peace Corps and an estimated $60 million of unexpended balances of last year's appropriations.

As described by Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., the difference would be some $50 or $60 million with the unexpended balance included and about $100 million if the Peace Corps funds were included as well.

"It just depends on which formula you use," the senator said.

DANBURY, Conn. (AP)—The FBI has launched an investigation into reported attempts to smuggle letters to and from Bernard Goldfine, Boston industrialist now serving a sentence for income tax evasion.

Warden Frank Kenton of the federal correctional institution said three members of the prison staff have been suspended pending completion of the investigation. He said no charges have been brought.

Goldfine was placed under administrative segregation while the investigation was going on.

Esther Whirling Back Toward U.S.

BOSTON (AP)—Esther, a northeast storm demoted from hurricane status last week, decided on a return visit to New England Monday and moved in a large loop to about 210 statute miles south-southwest of Nantucket.

She has a speed of about 10 miles an hour and probably will turn more toward the north-northwest with some acceleration during the next 12 hours.

Strongest winds are 30 to 40 miles an hour and gale warnings are displayed from Provincetown to Block Island, with small craft warnings elsewhere from Cape May, N.J., northward to Portland, Maine.

The weatherman says there will be some flooding from high tides Monday night and Tuesday from Portland southward.

Occasionally heavy rain over the eastern portions of New England will produce some flash flooding on smaller streams, and minor flooding on larger streams Tuesday, the weather bureau predicted.

You, of course, when you finally arrive in your costume.

And, that's Davison's. We're having as much fun as the hundreds of Georgians who have visited and keep coming back to see and to stay and enjoy the color and flavor of Davison's Festival of Italy.

To the pretty salesgirls we talked to in our cosmetic department, the high point of The Festival has been, so far, the pomp and ceremony of the grand opening, and the ribbon cutting by His Excellency, Sergio Fenaoltea, the Italian Ambassador to the United States.

One of the more fashion-minded members of our Personnel Department sparkles as she speaks of our Festival collection of hand-made jewelry imported from Italy.

And, we're with her. We gravitate to Street Floor Fine Jewelry daily to drool over each exquisite, hand-crafted pin, bracelet, necklace and charm flashing with amethysts, sapphires, rubies and pearls, set in eighteen-karat gold.

A Davison's V.P. says he'll never forget the melodious, theatrical performance of the Met's "Golden Curtain Quartette" at a brilliant social function given last week honoring our Italian guests. And one of our favorite Davison's Execs is late every morning for work because we can't get her past our Italian Festival windows.

Our gracious visitor, royal-through-and-through Princess Galitzine, a fashion leader of the Italian Haute Couture, captured more hearts than any girl since Scarlet O'Hara, not only here at Davison's, but all over Atlanta, before she flew home to Rome.

There have been no secretaries munching sandwiches at their desks since The Festival began. They're all up in our Sixth Floor Italian Sidewalk Cafe, basking in its warm, continental atmosphere, and ignoring their diets over the Italian menus.

molte grazie!

The Festival of Italy has been many things to all of us, but, perhaps, our Building Superintendent summed it up best when he said: "To me, The Festival is the smiles on the people who come to see it, and on the faces of the Davisonites that greet them. It's the hospitality, gaiety, the relaxed holiday feeling of it that has lifted my heart."

We're all grateful we live and work in a city which so wholeheartedly appreciates the creative, and is so responsive and sincerely receptive to the artistry and culture of another great nation of The Free World. Molte grazie, Atlanta!

Kennedy Gives Khrushchev a Choice Between Making Sense or Making War

President Kennedy's speech to the United Nations was both powerful and pointed. As chief defender of a world that Khrushchev is trying to panic, Mr. Kennedy honored his duty to make sense.

His plan for disarming strengthened America's initiative as the peace-seeker. But the most immediate importance of this strong and eloquent speech lay in its meanings with regard to Germany.

First, the President specified that nuclear weapons will be used to defend the Western position in Berlin if shooting becomes necessary. Khrushchev may wish to engage the West in conventional fighting which might enable him to seize more of Europe without risking destruction of Russia. The President has now cautioned him against that dangerous notion. This, then, was a policy announcement of the utmost toughness.

Second, Mr. Kennedy pointedly left room for a negotiated settlement of the unnecessary crisis in Germany. He has made it plain that Western access to Berlin is not negotiable. But he made it equally plain that Russia can sign any sort of paper it wants to sign with East Germany so long as she does not tread on Western rights.

And the President's careful phrasing did nothing to dispel the hints coming from Europe that West Germany may be asked to accept the "reality" of two Germanies as a negotiating card.

These hints have kicked up a lot of dust in West Germany. But the West Germans themselves have a certain responsibility to help sort out their own destiny and we would like to see them assume the role of policy creator rather than critic. Formal recognition of East Germany is out of the question. So is retreat from Berlin. But if Khrushchev can be traded nothing for nothing as a diplomatic nicety in order to give him a way back from the limb of war, then the negotiations to which Mr. Kennedy has opened the door can cool the crisis without war.

Coupled with his invitation to reason, however, was the promise of nuclear blows if Khrushchev chooses war. It is now up to Khrushchev to make sense.

United Appeal Is Fair, Economical

Every year about this time Atlantans are asked to give. They are asked to give the fair, economical and convenient way to United Appeal.

They are asked to give more each year, of course. Atlanta is growing and the needs of Atlanta people are growing, too.

Moreover, the geographic area served by United Appeal is expanding. This year, for the first time, the drive will be for the entire Atlanta metropolitan area, including Clayton and Gwinnett as well as Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb counties.

So this year's goal is $3,817,547—an increase of $213,000. The money will support Red Cross and 69 other health, welfare, service and character-building agencies. Budgets for these agencies have been carefully checked by several hundred citizen volunteers, and we have their word that the amount being sought is completely in line with community needs.

The one-drive appeal, which opened Monday, is designed to save Atlantans from the harassment, confusion and waste of multiple drives. Atlantans should respond by giving the United Appeal their full backing, keeping in mind that 70 different agencies are depending on this single drive.

Atlanta Whizzes Out Of the Barrel Era

The Williams Street ramp to the Expressway is now bare of barrels. The powers-to-be watched the barrel-rolling ceremony which marked the end of a makeshift arrangement designed to channel traffic.

Curbing has been installed to do the job. Progress sometimes comes slowly. But at least the city now knows that barrels were not made to be traffic guides.

Paul Brown's Record Provides Best Epitaph

All Georgians mourn the death of former U. S. Rep. Paul Brown, whose 28 years in the House were marked by diligence and devotion to duty such as the nation seldom has seen. His more than 50 years in public life reflected great credit to himself, his district and state.

Except for a brief period when he lost his only son in World War II and again during a severe illness, he prided himself on the fact he never missed a roll call or committee meeting. "When I am absent," he is reported to have said, "350,000 people go unrepresented." He might have gone further because all the people of the nation have benefited from legislation he supported and helped to write.

Perhaps the greatest material contribution to his state was in pushing through the Clark Hill and Hartwell Dams on the Savannah River. For these and his other achievements, Georgians ever will be grateful.

We join with all citizens of the state in sorrow at his passing. He served us well.

Butts County Exhibits Its Pride in Industries

Since 1953 Butts County has set aside one day out of each year to pay tribute to its industries. Two things of especial significance stand out in plans for Wednesday's observance.

One is the sizable number of plants that have located in the county during the past decade.

Another is the fact that the people there not only evidence their appreciation of new industries but also the pioneers, such as Pepperton Cotton Mills which was established in 1896, Georgia Power Co., and many others.

The county has made notable progress in beefing up its industrial economy and it is appropriate that the newcomers as well as the oldtimers be honored.

Close-up

Now Comes the Test of Atlanta's Heart

As Atlantans simmer down from a somewhat bitter political campaign, they find there are things to do, problems to be solved and people in this community who still need help. The election may have solved some things as far as the future is concerned; it did not solve those immediate community challenges which concern individuals, families and the entire population of the metropolitan area. These must be met as a community for community welfare and betterment.

Yesterday Atlantans and other residents of the five-county metropolitan area set about doing just that. The annual United Appeal drive to raise funds for 69 Community Chest agencies and the 10 different services of the Red Cross will provide another test of this community's will to take care of its own.

This year's goal of $3,817,000 is not a large one compared to population, need and community resources. Yet this amount can go far toward answering the call for services which can be supplied only on a united basis. The total is far less than that raised for such purposes in similar cities in our region. Atlanta ranks far down the list in united giving, surprising in light of its spirit and generosity.

The challenge this year includes two other counties, Gwinnett and Clayton, newcomers to metropolitan United Appeal. They, too, have decided that channelling their energies into one major campaign offers an orderly, time-saving method of community giving. Since so many of the metropolitan area's problems do not stop at the county line, an areawide attack is best.

In immediate past campaigns, individual giving has lagged behind corporate efforts. If each of us gave his "fair share" in relation to his income, the goal could be reached in record time. It certainly seems that each of us should accept his obligation to the less fortunate, to the troubled and the misplaced.

Services bought with those dollars you give to United Appeal literally touch every person in the community. They are investments in human adjustment, in prevention and cure. Fifteen Community Chest family service organizations alone helped 21,892 people overcome serious family problems last year. The Red Cross helped 177,993 people in some way during the same period.

United Appeal is a community obligation, your obligation and your opportunity. To the hundreds of volunteers: Start early, work hard and speedily. To the thousands of givers: Give once, give early, but give enough!

South Sticks With the Union

At Nashville, Tennessee, on Monday the people of the South saw something unusual and fine. They saw the governors of the Southern states step out of the shackles of the past and turn their strength to the national good.

Conferences of the Southern governors were, for a long time, kettles for the bitter brew of hostility toward the national government. But moderating influences have operated increasingly in recent years. And on Monday, when President Kennedy rose to speak for the nation against Khrushchev's warmongering, the governors of the South rose with him.

Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee set the tone of the conference. He said, "The states must now join the federal government in taking the initiative in reaching those discussions that control the future of the world."

The governors paused in their conference to listen to the Kennedy speech. Then they congratulated him and pledged their backing in these grave days.

This was a demonstration of true state sovereignty—sub-governments of the Union pledging their support to the destiny of the national community.

Racial recrimination was notably absent. The governors talked more of civil defense for their people.

Even Gov. Ross Barnett of Mississippi was subdued on racial matters. His effort to band the other governors into a regional confederacy in his image has not gone well. And he has undergone a certain embarrassment back home in Jackson where it was discovered that a $10,000 bathroom with gold-plated fixtures has been installed in the governor's mansion.

In the past it sometimes seemed that Southern governors had reached that state which a writer applied to the abolitionist Charles Sumner—"His mind had reached the calm water which receives and reflects images without absorbing them—it contained nothing but itself."

But the first day of the meeting at Nashville showed both the depth and the growth of the Southern mind while reflecting, as always, the courage and resolve of the Southern heart.

This Is No Time For Name Calling

WASHINGTON—There are small but unmistakable signs that a familiar American reaction to prolonged periods of international strain, name-calling among ourselves, is about to set in. If it sets in generally, it will be one of the most handsome gifts we could hand to Nikita Khrushchev and the Soviet Union. For the first and most basic of Khrushchev's objectives has never been so clearly manifested as now. It is the objective of division. He tries to divide the Western allies over Berlin, the United Nations within itself and the American people within themselves.

Thus it will be the greatest of plagues and the most fantastic of national errors if by our own words and actions we promote for him his prime purpose of putting people and political parties in this country at each other's throats.

Let us, for heaven's sake and also for our own sake, stop acting as though those nice old ladies, male and female, who want only "negotiation" at any price, really have the power to sell us out to appeasement. They don't, not for a moment.

And let us, for heaven's sake and also for our own sake, quit acting as though those bluff characters who demand an atomic ultimatum to Khrushchev by sundown really have the capacity to hustle us into an unthinking nuclear war. They don't, not for a moment.

We have no reason whatever to fear either kind of extremism. The responsible leaders in both parties have, in fact, for months demonstrated a great capacity for sound and calm and responsible conduct in the face of the most frigidly menacing blasts yet to blow from the cold war.

At the moment, however, and in spite of the fact that we all surely ought to know by now that every time of trouble always brings out the lunatic fringes, the outlook for continued calm reason is becoming a bit beleaguered.

There are those who believe the President should declare in advance precisely when and how and where he would use atomic weapons against the Russians in various eventualities. They have a right to this view. But they have no right to suggest that those who think otherwise are "soft on communism"—those dissenters often being, ironically, some of the most decorated and conservative officers in the American military services.

Those who think that the Berlin crisis (and all others) should be approached solely with glad hymns to "negotiation" and glad offers of same also have a right to that view, extraordinarily silly though it is. But they do not have the right to suggest that those who think otherwise, and would like to mix a little power and determination in with the negotiations, are reactionaries and warmongers.

Meanwhile, perhaps the most authentic anti-Communist in the United States, J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI, has just done a notable service in the present atmosphere. He has warned the public that indiscriminate denouncing as Communists those we don't agree with "helps the Communists by diffusing the forces of their opponents."

There is one other thing he might very usefully do. He might also justly point out that the indiscriminate labeling of other people as more or less Fascist warmongers isn't too helpful either. What we need in this dangerous period is a great deal of creative tolerance among ourselves.

American People Prepared To Pay

Sam Mardian is the mayor of Phoenix, Ariz. Sam came to Phoenix with his brothers shortly after the war to enter the construction business.

The Mardians are good builders and have prospered. Now Sam is "paying the rent" for the space he has occupied by serving the people of Phoenix in the municipal government.

Not long ago the mayor, who has been active in the work of the YMCA, was discussing this organization and its efforts to provide leadership for the citizens of tomorrow.

"We speak of the teaching moments," Sam said, "because we know that when adults are in contact with youngsters, they should always be alert for that moment when a boy is receptive." This bit of truth might be applied to adults. Most of the time we are so preoccupied that we find little opportunity to consider and embrace significant information.

The teaching moment, in our world of politics, usually occurs in a moment of great crisis. The President's recent report to the nation on Berlin was a teaching moment. It was a time for presentation of the hard unembellished truth.

Berlin is more than a divided city; it is symbolic of the contest between East and West. If we desert free Berlin, Western civilization will be branded as coward.

If we stand resolute regardless of how Mr. Khrushchev threatens, the free people of the world will find new cause for hope.

People Thought It Came Free

The Americans are credited with—or accused of—inventing Instant Coffee, Instant Tea, Instant Soup, Instant Potatoes and Instant Beer. Now they have surpassed themselves and invented Instant Money. When Instant Money was first announced thousands of people thought that the banks were giving it away for free.

They had to be gently nudged back to a harsh world where people go to prison for debt, where folks get sick with worry because they are not able to pay their hire-purchase installments, and where large, coarse men with rough aprons come to distraint on goods that have not been paid for.

What appeared at first sight to be the glorious answer to the debtors' dream—it was sponsored by a pillar of financial respectability, the First National Bank of Boston—was something a good deal trickier.

The idea of Instant Money is this: Customers can make out checks without putting money in the bank on which they are drawn. You grant yourself a loan without having to have a bank balance in the first place—and then repay in monthly installments.

When you sign a check you produce an identity card from the bank—which most shops will accept, and even give you monetary change in, of course, Instant Money.

Where are the sullen clouds of insolvency behind this golden lining? They are there all right—dark and heavy.

Help yourself from the creak of gold and be manacled to the iron handcuffs of debt for life.

Like Money In the Bank

The talk in the barber shop turned to taking money to the bank. Steve Thompson told this story concerning circumstances which go to prove you should not take anything for granted, jump at conclusions or talk about a wedding. A young lady only a few days wed went from the loan office where she worked to the bank carrying $300 of the company pass book and on the bank's records.

The young man at the window at the bank was a friend. The young man and the young lady had a lively conversation about her recent marriage. The young man entered the $300 on the loan company pass book and on the bank's records.

But he forgot to get the $300. She in turn forgot to give it to him.

That night she and her husband went to a dance at Lake-wood Park. Thinking her pocketbook was empty, she casually hung it on a hook in the cloak room. The dancing over, she took the pocketbook from the hook and went home.

Meanwhile, the bank manager had discovered the $300 shortage. He called the loan office manager because the bank's books showed that deposit as the only for the day in the amount of $300.

TAKE A LOOK: The next morning the loan officer confronted the young lady in regard to the deposit. Certainly, she said, the deposit had been made.

"But maybe you didn't deposit the money," he insisted. "Maybe it is still in your pocketbook."

"But it's not," she said. "The pocketbook is empty."

"It won't hurt to look and see," the loan manager said.

She looked. It wasn't. I mean the pocketbook wasn't empty. The $300 was there.

Had someone hooked it at the dance hall, then the young man at the bank would have been expected to make good.

The story has a happy ending and definitely a number of obvious morals.

ANY BANK: The Steve Thompson narration inspired Herman Scott of Canton to speak up.

"A man came into my shop yesterday," he said, "and bought a $15 radio. He wanted to give me a check. I asked, 'What bank?'"

"He said, 'Any bank. Any bank oughta have $15!'"

DON'T FORGET: "The need is great! Bring your standard of giving up to your standard of living." United Appeal.

The Tombs Teach You That Kings Can Be Forgotten

We are back in Cairo now, just for the day, to get a good bath and pack for the next trip, to the little sheikdom of Kuwait, down in the Persian Gulf. It was a good trip up to Luxor, and the Valley of the Kings. It is nothing but a great dry desert valley, honeycombed with the tombs of a lot of Pharaohs who didn't seem to think about much while they were alive, but digging fine caves in the hills to be buried in.

The hills surrounding the valley are honeycombed with them, deep passageways cut through solid rock, and big rooms dug out far under the mountain, where the king was laid out, with all his possessions, reproduced in gold, around him.

The treasures were gone, and all the gold, but the paintings on the walls were still there, as bright as if they were painted yesterday.

After the tombs, we went to the big temple at Karnak, which took 1,000 years to build. It's hard to describe this place, and the strange way it makes you feel, standing there in the silence, in the shadow of the biggest columns ever raised by man.

The tombs teach you that, no matter how great a king was, he can die and be forgotten, and the ruins of the temple are even more disquieting, for you look at it, and know that gods can die, too.

We went from here to Aswan, where the big dam is being built that will make even the pyramids look puny, and then took a ride in a sail boat on the Nile for an hour, just at sunset, when the hawks, that the old Egyptians used to worship, were flying home.

Then we caught a plane and came on back to Cairo, where nobody cares about what happened 5,000 years ago, but only about tomorrow.

'Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself' Is More Than Mild Suggestion

"And the second commandment is like unto the first: thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Let us be honest: has God demanded the impossible in this commandment? Can a human being measure love to his neighbor by the same yardstick that he measures love to himself? Since our world is suffering from the fatal disease of lovelessness, we should try to answer this hard, mystifying question. God never demands what is impossible; nor does He ever make a mistake.

The commandment is not a mild suggestion, not a pale, ethical statement on human relations, not a weak prompting. Instead, it is an imperative command. It is an order, carrying the force of, "Do it now." Can a person obey the command to love? Isn't love a spontaneous thing which flows from the heart without coercive stimuli? Would you not think that of all the areas that should remain inviolate, it would be that of love? If love is coerced, wherein is man free to love or hate?

The difficulty of answering the questions notwithstanding, there is no place behind this barrage of questions to hide our lovelessness. Much of the difficulty is removed when we understand what kind of love God is referring to. He is not speaking of eros—that emotion which involves passion, sensitive, interpersonal action, reaction. Instead, love for neighbor is intelligent good will, it is justice tempered by mercy, sympathetic awareness, it is more than living and letting live. It is living and helping others to live. Tolerance is not enough in our world. There must be love if the human race foregoes annihilation.

Musicians agree that when a single note of music is sounded, adjacent notes instantly reverberate in a musical ear. For instance, if middle C is struck,

B and D enliven in a sensitive, imaginative ear. Just so when the middle "C" of love is struck on the diapason of human relations. The adjacent, related virtues are set in motion. From this sympathetic proximity come all the complimentary facets of human nature.

Yes, it is a divine command

State Congressmen Pack Up, Expecting Closing This Week

By TED LIPPMAN
Constitution Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Congress looked forward Monday to adjournment Wednesday . . . or Thursday . . . or Friday . . . or later, with many members of both houses already home and not expected to return.

Half of the Georgia delegation, five representatives and one senator, were either in Georgia Monday or on the way and not expected to be back before adjournment.

WILL SPEAK
Sen. Herman Talmadge and Rep. Phil Landrum were in Toccoa to speak at the Toccoa Falls said the congressman doesn't expect to return. He will be operating out of his office at Jasper until Congress reconvenes in January.

Sen. Talmadge's office at 494 Spring St., N.E., Atlanta, opened Monday. He has several speaking engagements this week and also does not plan to return to Washington until January.

Representatives Carl Vinson and John P. Miller went home last week. They will be working out of their Georgia offices, in Milledgeville and Meigs respectively, throughout the recess period.

Rep. John J. Flynt Jr. returned to his home and office in Griffin this weekend and is not expected to return until January.

Rep. Robert Stephens was planning to leave Washington late Monday in order to attend former Rep. Paul Brown's funeral Tuesday. Stephens will work out of his office in Athens the rest of the year.

Rep. James C. Davis said Monday he expected to be home next Monday if Congress adjourns Wednesday. His home office will be open at 1116 Clairmont Ave., Decatur. He expects to spend most of the recess in his Fifth District.

Is Your English Holding You Back?

"Many intelligent men and women are held back in their jobs and social lives because they use poor English or can't speak and write effectively," says Don Bolander, director of English at Career Institute, Chicago. "Adults who realize that their English is holding them back use our new home method to stop making embarrassing mistakes in English, to improve their writing, to increase their vocabularies, to speed up their reading, to acquire the techniques of fluent conversation. But the use of effective English pays off in unexpected ways," says Bolander, "because language is a tool of thought as well as a tool of expression."

For those interested, Bolander has made available a free 32-page booklet that tells how you can gain the ability to speak and write like a college graduate, in your own home. Just put your name and address on a card or letter and send to Don Bolander, Dept. AC-8, 30 East Adams, Chicago 3, Illinois. The booklet will be mailed promptly with no obligation, of course.

'Muv' Can't Resist Commenting On the Patients and the Doctor

ALFORD—As long as I can remember Muv has been content to sit and wait any length of time anywhere if she could, as she put it, "look at the people." Sitting and waiting in a doctor's office is a perfect place for people-watching but unfortunately when Muv watches she comments. And I don't know about the other visitors to the Dothan doctor the other day but I'm still jumpy from my sojourn within the sound of Muv's thunderous whisper.

"You must never make personal remarks about people," she admonished me in my youth, adding privately, "I know now, 'not if they can hear you.'"

To give Muv credit, she is convinced that when she screens her lips with her hand and whispers that the silence is practically unbroken. But a sonic boom is a light sigh by comparison to one of Muv's whispers.

The fact that her curiosity is friendly and her comments generally generous was the only thing that saved us.

Right away Muv was delighted to see that she wasn't the only aging lady being towed to the doctor by an officious daughter.

"One, two, three of us old crones," she counted to me back of her hand. "Aren't we pitiful, having to be pulled in by our young 'uns'?"

I smiled at her and pointed out a picture in a magazine, hoping to distract her.

"The old girl in gray," she hissed, "she's Mrs. Got Rocks. You can tell. That's a home-made dress but look at her shoes. You can always tell by shoes—expensive ones."

I nodded brightly and embarked on a long and noisy tale about some winter boots I ordered for country wear the other day. Muv listened but her eyes were on her neighbors.

"That little girl with the watering eyes," she whispered, "she must be 17 or 18 and her mother's looking for another baby, poor thing."

"Yes," I interposed in a bright, social tone, "Katie's baby is a beauty—looks just like his grandmother."

"Huh?" Muv said and then smiled knowingly. "Give me a pencil," she said.

Nervously I fished one out of my purse and handed it to her. She scrawled, "The lady in black is proud of her lingerie." And then to be sure I made no mistake about who was sitting with her dress hitched up over her knees Muv added in a carrying whisper, "The one right in front of me!"

I flinched and the lady in black pulled down her skirt. A jug-eared youth with a scar over his eye held the floor for a time with the story of how he was watching a drag race and bopped in the face with a flying clutch. New people came and Muv speculated about their age, ailments and antecedents.

Finally the doctor called us and when the session was over and we were leaving, Muv smiled warmly on the doctor's retreating form and said, "Why he's just a little old young boy but isn't he smart?"

I made the mistake of shushing her for then she thundered, "If that's the worst thing he ever hears about himself he'll be mighty lucky!"

If he missed the first whisper heaven knows what he thought of the second.

Allen Will Select Panels Carefully

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Mayor-nominate Ivan Allen Jr. said Monday he will confer with all members of Atlanta's newly chosen aldermanic board before deciding which of them he will appoint to the 23 standing aldermanic committees that guide the city's operational policies.

Fresh from his victory over Lester Maddox in last Friday's runoff, Allen reemphasized that he wants to be mayor "of all the people."

He said he plans to "go back to school"—visiting all city departments, schools and every precinct in an intensive orientation for the tasks he will assume in January as successor to retiring Mayor William B. Hartsfield.

MEETS PRESS TODAY

Allen also said he will hold his first post-victory press conference at 3 p.m. Tuesday at his campaign headquarters at 66 Peachtree St., N.E.

In setting up the membership of the important aldermanic committees, Allen will be conferring with 12 veterans and five newcomers—the winners of the Sept. 13 primary and Sept. 22 runoff elections.

The newcomers will include a new vice mayor, Sam Massell Jr., who unseated Lee Evans from the aldermanic board presidency.

Two wards, the Sixth and the Eighth, will each have brandnew representatives on the city governing body. In the Sixth, Republican Richard Freeman ousted incumbent T. Wayne Blanchard, and Cecil Turner beat two opponents for the post vacated by the retiring William A. (Bill) Sims.

TO MEET ON BUDGET

In the Eighth, Republican Rodney Cook nabbed the seat vacated by the retirement of Jesse Draper and political newcomer Buddy Fowlkes unseated incumbent Goodwyn (Shag) Cates.

"I also want to meet with the budget commission not to direct but to learn," Allen said. "I want to be familiar with it and to be conversant with its provisions. Many things are needed in many areas of Atlanta. We must gear our administration to trying our utmost to provide them."

Allen will be the first new mayor of Atlanta since June, 1942. Mayor Hartsfield has served continuously since that time. Hartsfield had another four-year term prior to that.

"I expect to spend the next three months learning more about Atlanta," Allen said. "I already have a basic knowledge, but I am going to dig in and learn more."

Allen and the new aldermanic board will be inducted in ceremonies scheduled for Jan. 2,

Shotgun-Toting Boy, 16, Admits 22 Burglaries

An East Point policeman Monday disarmed and arrested a 16-year-old burglary suspect who was holed up with a stolen shotgun, officers said.

A resident on Clark Drive, where two homes were entered, pointed out to Patrolman Tom Holcombe where the youth had scurried into a hole in a rock wall. Holcombe climbed the wall and saw a shotgun barrel poked out.

Grabbing the barrel, Holcombe yanked. Out came the shotgun and the 16-year-old suspect who had been holding it.

Lt. W. B. Cawthon said the youth admitted 22 residence burglaries over East Point in which money, radios and other items were stolen.

The youth told of going from door to door knocking, Cawthon related. He said if anyone answered, the youth asked for a drink of water. If no one answered he went inside.

1962 when the new government is organized. The old government will expire at that time and the new will take over administration of the city's business.

"I would like to stress another thing," Allen said. "I have a very deep respect for every department head in the government. I am not hunting for anyone. I simply intend to try to do the very best job possible and I want everyone from the highest official to the humblest employee to join and let's play on the same team."

3,860 GM Workers Here Begin Returning to Jobs

The two-week-old strike that shut down three General Motors assembly plants here appeared settled Monday, with some 3,860 workers scheduled to return to their jobs during the next two days.

A GM spokesman said 1,380 production workers at the Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac plant in Doraville will begin reporting back to their jobs at 7 a.m. Tuesday.

About 2,480 production employees are scheduled to return Wednesday to their jobs at the Chevrolet and Fisher body plants, which have been idle along with B-O-P since Sept. 11 when the United Automobile Workers walked out in a dispute involving local working conditions.

UAW Local 10 members voted Monday morning to return to the B-O-P plant. Later Monday, a UAW Local 31 spokesman said his group had voted, 199-32, to ratify an agreement at the Chevrolet plant.

Officials of Local 34, which represents Fisher Body as well as Chevrolet workers, were told by UAW leaders now meeting in Detroit to end their strike here.

Governors Unite To Praise Kennedy

By CLAUDE SITTON

(Copyright 1961 by The New York Times Co.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Southern governors joined Monday in a display of national unity reflecting the region's concern over the crisis in world affairs.

The sectionalism that has dominated some past conferences was missing, both in the opening business session and in a resolution endorsing President John F. Kennedy's speech at the United Nations.

This preoccupation with national problems as opposed to those affecting only the South was carried over Monday night at a state dinner. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, the principal speaker, cautioned the Soviet Union in his prepared remarks against misjudging United States determination to defend Berlin. He said this could lead to "an irreparable catastrophe."

Johnson's assertion reinforced the warning issued earlier Monday by the President.

"We challenge no one," said the vice president, "but we never surrender under threats. The path of reason, or diplomacy, or negotiation, of honorable settlement is open. We want to take it."

PLEDGE OF PEACE

"We seek peace but we shun appeasement because we know it is surrender on the installment plan and the signal for ultimate war. Our power is a pledge of peace, not an incitement to conflict."

The serious tone of the three-day conference was set by Gov. Price Daniel of Texas, the chairman, in his opening remarks Monday morning at the Hermitage Hotel. He urged immediate steps to improve civil defense programs.

"It is essential that we who have the responsibility for civil defense and disaster relief in our respective states be sure that our programs are well organized, ready for action, and improved in every way possible," he asserted.

The perilous nature of the times was emphasized also by Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee in welcoming his 14 fellow chief executives. "These are the moments of the great count-down," he declared.

COUNT-DOWN

Ellington took note of crises in Washington, the United Nations and in U.S.-Soviet relations. "At Berlin," he said, "it's the most sensitive count-down of all, and it's a count-down that is now nearer the zero mark than it is to 100."

He said the states had always readily accepted responsibility in times of national emergency. "but no longer is mere acceptance the solution."

The sectional themes of segregation and states' rights were raised only off the conference floor. In a news conference, Gov. John Patterson of Alabama criticized Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy for exerting pressure in the civil rights field.

However, Patterson praised the administration's conduct of foreign affairs and said the President might be the victim of poor advice on the domestic scene.

400 Youths Battle Police In Algiers

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—About 400 youths held police at bay for more than three hours in the center of Algiers Monday night, blocking traffic, stoning police and military trucks and tearing up sidewalks.

It was a battle of maneuver and the mood of the participants varied from jocular to serious. Several times riot police and soldiers charged the demonstrators and sent them scotching up side streets. But each time the mob reformed to taunt the police. Massive traffic jams built up along busy arteries.

One explosion was heard—apparently from a grenade—but there was no indication which side had used the weapon. The police and soldiers were backed up by an armored car and a water cannon. Tear-gas bombs were fired to disperse the mob, but no firearms were used.

Seventeen persons, including the director of the nationalized Algerian railway system, were arrested.

The demonstration came at the end of a day when forbidden black and white flags of the underground secret army organization were flown over several Algerian cities.

The secret army called for a massive flag day to demonstrate opposition to President Charles de Gaulle's Algerian policies. It was observed only half-heartedly in Algiers.

Slim to Quit Job If Named UN Chief

By THOMAS J. HAMILTON

(Copyright 1961 By The New York Times Co.)

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Mongi Slim of Tunisia, president of the U.N. General Assembly, has decided to resign if he is named temporarily to take over the duties of the late Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Reliable sources said Monday that Slim's decision to give up the presidency was conditional upon an arrangement whereby he would continue to head the secretariat until April 1963. This is the date when Hammarskjöld's second five-year term would have expired.

Slim's decision has been accepted by some of his leading supporters, including the United States. It is expected to answer constitutional objections raised by France and Latin American countries, who contend that the U.N. charter does not permit one man simultaneously to hold the positions of Assembly president and acting secretary-general.

The group supporting Slim is avoiding use of the title, "acting secretary-general," for fear that this would create the impression that a permanent successor to Hammarskjöld was being named.

The group also has had misgivings about Slim's insistence that the question of a temporary successor should be submitted to the Security Council and transferred to the General Assembly only if there is a Soviet veto.

Since the council must recommend any candidate for secretary-general before the assembly can act, some delegates hold that the participation of the council would be interpreted as meaning that a permanent appointment was involved.

According to reliable sources, Slim has dropped this condition but is sticking to his position that he will not agree to become a temporary successor to Hammarskjöld unless the key African and Asian countries are behind him.

The original idea of having Slim take over temporarily arose from the fact that he was certain to become president of the General Assembly. It was held that since the President would be the only elected officer, he was the logical person to take over pending the appointment of a successor to Hammarskjöld. However, some authorities on the charter hold that if Slim were named as temporary successor to Hammarskjöld he automatically would vacate the office of assembly president. Slim apparently has accepted this opinion.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Tuesday, Sept. 26, 1961 7

A group of African, Asian and European countries backing a temporary appointment began to sound out the various blocs.

Other governors who will speak at the November meeting include Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey, Buford Ellington of Tennessee, John B. Swainson of Michigan, Elmer L. Anderson of Minnesota, and Terry Sanford of North Carolina.

Cities Back Salaries in Legislature

The Georgia Municipal Association will support a move to change legislative salaries from a piecework formula to a flat salary.

GMA Executive Director Elmer George said the organization has not decided whether to accept State Treasurer George Hamilton's $3,200-per-year proposal, or some other figure.

But George and Mayor Frank Myers of Americus, chairman of a special GMA committee, said they will invite other state organizations to join them in supporting the pay change.

CITIES PERSONAL LOSS

Myers said, "It is ridiculous to continue to expect qualified citizens to offer for membership in the state Legislature when they do not receive compensation for actual out-of-pocket expenses. Having represented my country, I know."

George added, "The work load of the Legislature increases each year... It is unrealistic to expect dedicated and qualified citizens of Georgia to run for office at a personal loss to themselves."

SCALE BID UNDECIDED

Myers is scheduled to hold a committee meeting within the next few weeks to decide what salary scale the GMA would back.

A change in the method of paying legislators would involve a constitutional amendment to be voted on in the November general election next year.

Legislators currently are paid $2,000 per year for the regular session, and $20 per day plus actual expenses for their committee work. Some state officials hope to increase the pay but cut out the per diem for committee work, encouraging the lawmakers to create only absolutely necessary committees.

Anti-Trespass Law to Get Test Of Its Validity

The Supreme Court has scheduled oral arguments Oct. 9 on validity of a 1960 anti-trespass law aimed at curbing lunch counter sit-ins by Negroes.

The case comes before the tribunal in an appeal by 22 Negroes arrested and convicted at Savannah as a result of sit-in demonstrations. All were fined $100.

Counsel for the Negroes have given notice that the case will be taken to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary. The statute makes it a misdemeanor for a person to refuse to leave private property upon request of the owner or business manager.

Also involved in the appeal is the conviction of 10 other Negroes for unlawful assembly under an 1865 law.

led by Cobb Detective Harry L. Haggard have arrested Wendell Duffy, 21, of Carrollton and Chaney Randall, 26, of Marietta.

Other arrests may be made in connection with the case, Sheriff Lambert said.

Lambert said that two of the three suspects refused to talk but that the third, whom the sheriff did not name, led officers to a "place below Phenix City, Ala., where 'some of the stuff had been sold.' This suspect also implicated the other two in the breaking, the sheriff said.

Among the items stolen from the Chalkley home were a television set, an $800 movie projector, hi-fi stereo phonograph, a transistor radio and several dresses belonging to Miss Hayward.

The Chalkley home was burglarized first on Aug. 19 and again the following night. Miss Hayward and Chalkley are in England where she is making a movie. The burglars shattered a window and broke up several pieces of furniture.

the vial back into his pocket and handed him a green paper sack, ordering:

"Put the money in here. I want all of it. What's in the safe, too."

Barnes said he was told the gunman turned down the change when asked if he wanted that and walked out, the sack of money in one hand and a gun in the other.

In leaving, Barnes said, the bandit warned Langford and Fetter. "You'd better not call police because you will be watched for a half hour."

A third employee, a young woman, was working in another room and was unaware that a holdup was in progress.

DeKalb County police said a man answering the same description on Sept. 11 robbed the Consolidated Loan office at 1352 Moreland Ave., N.E., of $434 after threatening employees with a bottle which he said contained nitroglycerin.

Bandits apparently working alone have robbed 10 bank and loan association offices in Georgia this year, six of them in the Atlanta metropolitan area in the last six months.

at work," and the Communists aim to take over America by 1972 without even a fight.

"We need a great religious revival," Graham said. "We need men today like Dr. Forrest."

"Our nation has turned to God before, and I would to God it would again," he told the crowd from all over Georgia and several other states.

At the end of Dr. Graham's sermon, he asked those who wished to dedicate or rededicate their lives to Christ to come forward. Scores of old and young, Negro and white, came to the speaker's platform, some with tears streaming down their faces.

Earlier Monday, Sen. Talmadge spoke to a group of businessmen at a luncheon at the Institute.

He said that Dr. Forrest had "courage, determination and vision that was equal to his greatness."

Talmadge also said that in Americans today, "I think I see a loss of faith. We need the faith that our forefathers had in attending church and Sunday School years ago when it got so hard they had to shoot an Indian on the way to get there."

Talmadge said it was unfortunate that the law of the jungle determines world politics today.

The 50th anniversary of the Institute memorializing Dr. Forrest also started a campaign to build another dormitory at the Toccoa Falls Institute.

Dr. Julian A. Bandy, present head of the Institute, told how Dr. Forrest's $10 had grown into $1,200,000 worth of property and told how would-be students were having to be turned away because of lack of dormitory space.

U.N. Orders China Showdown As East, West Swap Charges

By ROBERT CONLEY
(Copyright 1961 By The New York Times Co.)
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—The General Assembly agreed Monday night to debate the question on the admission of Communist China to the United Nations in an atmosphere of charge and counter-charge.

This was the first time in 11 years that the issue was not shelved.

Thus the way was opened for a full confrontation this fall on the Assembly floor on an issue that has divided East and West, stirred political enmity within the United States and caused friction among America's allies.

The move followed an attack by Soviet Delegate Valerian A. Zorin, who assailed the Nationalist Chinese as a "bankrupt clique" and a "rotten regime."

Moreover, Zorin again implied that there could be no settlement of disarmament or other key issues until the question of Peiping's seat in the United Nations was decided.

Taking the floor immediately afterward, Dr. T. F. Tsiang, Nationalist China's delegate, made a heated defense of the Nationalist government of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek as the only constitutional and legitimate representative of the nearly 700 million Chinese people.

He portrayed the Communist government in Peiping as the "puppet" of subversion, without moral or legal rights to speak for China.

ready to use all its powers to support the American proposal."

The British and West German governments limited their immediate official statements to disarmament.

But British officials privately hailed Kennedy's speech as an outstanding combination of realism and vision, conciliation and firmness.

The British especially warmed to Kennedy's statement that he considers a peaceful settlement to the Berlin crisis is possible even if the Soviet Union and Communist East Germany sign a separate peace treaty.

TROIKA OPPOSED

The British stand firmly behind Kennedy's call for a single secretary-general to replace Dag Hammarskjöld. They also oppose the Soviet Union's so-called troika proposal to replace the secretary-general with a three-man directorate on which each would have veto power.

The London Times said editorially the President's speech was primarily aimed at preserving the United Nations "as a body capable of effective action in maintaining the peace and protecting young nations."

In West Germany, newspaper headlines naturally emphasized the Berlin aspects of the President's speech. The independent Frankfurter Neue Presse bannered "Kennedy: No rigid formula for Berlin solution."

The independent Frankfurter Rundschau declared "Kennedy stresses confidence in Berlin settlement," and the conservative Frankfurter Allgemeine had "Kennedy hopes for peaceful settlement of Berlin conflict."

London's two evening newspapers also concentrated on Berlin. "A truce to terror—Kennedy's call," headlined the Evening Standard. The Evening News bannered: "Kennedy calls for truce to terror."

Envoy Reappointed

LONDON (AP)—Ian Dixon Scott, former British ambassador to the Congo who was accused by India of hampering U.N. work in the troubled African republic, has been named British ambassador to the Sudan.

The outbreak occurred as the Assembly adopted an agenda of 91 items, recommended by its steering committee last Thursday. The assembly adjourned at 7 p.m. until 11 a.m. Tuesday but not without other investive over the questions of Tibet, the Angolan revolt and South Africa's apartheid policy of racial separation.

On those three items the opponents, whether Communist or Western, disputed the right of the assembly to "interfere" in the internal affairs of the countries responsible.

Zorin contested to the last authority of the 99-nation body to discuss Communist Chinese rule in Tibet. He maintained that Tibet was an integral part of Communist China and thus could not be discussed without the presence of a delegation from Peiping.

The Assembly, however, overrode the Soviet protests and voted 48 to 14, with 35 abstentions, to debate the Tibetan question again this fall.

Text of President's Address: U.N.'s Life Is at Stake

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Following is the text of President John F. Kennedy's address before the U.N. General Assembly:

We meet in an hour of grief and challenge. Dag Hammarskjöld is dead. But the United Nations lives on. His tragedy is deep in our hearts, but the task for which he died is at the top of our agenda. A noble servant of peace is gone. But the quest for peace lies before us.

The problem is not the death of one man—the problem is the life of this organization. It will either grow to meet the challenge of our age—or it will be gone with the wind, without influence, without force, without respect. We must let it die—to enfeeble its vigor—to cripple its powers—we would condemn the future.

For in the development of this organization rests the only true alternative to war—and war appeals no longer as a rational alternative. Unconditional war can no longer lead to unconditional victory. It can no longer serve to settle disputes. It can no longer be of concern to great powers alone. For a nuclear disaster, spread by winds and waters and fear, could well engulf the great and the small, the rich and the poor, the committed and the uncommitted alike. Mankind must put an end to war—or war will put an end to mankind.

Truce to Terror

So let us here resolve that Dag Hammarskjöld did not live—or die—in vain. Let us call a truce to terror. Let us invoke the blessings of peace. And, as we build an international capacity to keep peace, let us join in dismantling the national capacity to wage war.

II

This will require new strength and new roles for a new United Nations. For disarmament without checks is but a shadow—and a community without law is but a shell. Already the United Nations has become both the measure and the vehicle of man's most generous impulses. Already it has provided—in the Middle East, in Africa, in Asia—a means of holding violence within bounds.

But the great question which confronted this body in 1945 is still before us—whether man's cherished hopes for progress and freedom are to be destroyed by tactics of terror and disruption—whether the "foul winds of war" can be tamed in time to free the cooling winds of reason—and whether the pledges of our Charter are to be fulfilled or defied: Pledges to secure peace, progress, human rights and respect for world law.

In this hall there are not three forces, but only two. One is composed of those who are trying to build the kind of world described in Articles I and II of the Charter. The other, seeking a different world, would undermine this organization in the process.

1 Man, Not 3

Today of all days our dedication to that Charter must be strengthened. It must be strengthened first of all, by the selection of an outstanding civil servant to carry forward the responsibilities of the secretary-general—a man endowed with both the wisdom and the power to make meaningful the moral force of the world community. The late secretary-general nurtured and sharpened the United Nations' obligation to act. But he did not invent it. It was there in the Charter. It is still there in the Charter.

However difficult it will be to fill Mr. Hammarskjöld's place, it can better be filled by one man than by three. Even the three horses of the troika did not have three drivers, all going in different directions. They had only one—and so must the U.N. executive. To install a triumvirate, or any panel or rotating authority, in the United Nations administrative offices would replace order with anarchy, action with paralysis, and confidence with gross confusion.

The secretary-general, in a very real sense, is the servant of this Assembly. Diminish his authority and you diminish the authority of the only body where all nations, regardless of power, are equal and sovereign. Until all the powerful are just, the weak will be secure only in the strength of this Assembly.

Effective and independent executive action is not the same question as balance representation. In view of the enormous change in the membership of this body since its founding, the American delegation will join in any effort for the prompt review and revision of the composition of United Nations bodies.

Law, Not War

But to give this organization three drivers—to permit each great power in effect to decide its own case—would entrench the cold war in the headquarters of peace. Whatever advantages such a plan holds out to my country, as one of the great powers, we reject it. For we far prefer world law, in the age of self-determination, to world war, in the age of mass extermination.

III

Today, every inhabitant of this planet must contemplate the day when it may no longer be habitable. Every man, woman and child lives under a nuclear sword of Damocles, hanging by the slenderest of threads, capable of being cut at any moment by accident, miscalculation or madness.

"YOU WERE IN GOOD FORM"
Soviet's Khrushchev, Right, Congratulates Kennedy

The weapons of war must be abolished before they abolish us.

Men no longer debate whether armaments are a symptom or cause of tension. The mere existence of modern weapons—ten million times more destructive than anything the world has ever known, and only minutes away from any target on earth—is a source of horror, of discord and distrust. Men no longer maintain that disarmament must await the settlement of all disputes—for disarmament must be a part of any permanent settlement. And men no longer pretend that the quest for disarmament is a sign of weakness—for in a spiraling arms race, a nation's security may well be shrinking even as its arms increase.

For 15 years this organization has sought the reduction and destruction of arms. Now that goal is no longer a dream—it is a practical matter of life or death. The risks inherent in disarmament pale in comparison to the risks inherent in an unlimited arms race.

A Human Problem

It is in this spirit that the recent Belgrade conference—recognizing that this is no longer a Soviet problem or an American problem, but a human problem—endorsed a program of "general, complete and strictly international control of disarmament." It is in this spirit that we in the United States have labored this year, with a new, statutory agency fully endorsed by the Congress, find an approach to disarmament which would be so far-reaching yet realistic, so mutually balanced and beneficial, that it could be accepted by every nation. And it is in this spirit that we have presented to the Soviet Union—under the label both nations now accept of "general and complete disarmament"—a statement of newly agreed principles for negotiation.

But we are well aware that all issues of principle are not settled—and that principles alone are not enough. It is, therefore, our intention to challenge the Soviet Union, not to an arms race but to a peace race—to advance with us step by step, stage by stage, until general and complete disarmament has actually been achieved. We invite them now to go beyond agreement in principle to reach agreement on actual plans.

The program to be presented to this Assembly—for general and complete disarmament under effective international control—moves to bridge the gap between those who insist on a gradual approach and those who talk only of the final and total achievement. It would create machinery to keep the peace as it destroys the machines of war. It would proceed through balanced and safeguarded stages designed to give no state a military advantage over another.

"Starts Progress"

It would place the final responsibility for verification and control where it belongs—not with the big powers alone, not with one's adversary or one's self—but in under the eye of an international disarmament organization, a steady reduction in forces, both nuclear and conventional, until it has abolished all armies and all weapons except those needed for internal order and a new United Nations peace force. And it starts that process now, today, even as the talks begin.

an international organization within the framework of the United Nations itself. It would assure that indispensable conditions of disarmament—true inspection—in stages proportionate to the stage of disarmament. It would cover delivery systems as well as weapons. It would ultimately halt their production as well as their testing, their transfer as well as their possession. It would achieve, result from the tests of others.

U.S. Proposal

But to halt the spread of these terrible weapons, to halt the contamination of the air, to halt the spiraling nuclear arms race, we remain ready to seek new avenues of agreement. Our new disarmament program thus includes the following proposals:

—First, signing the test-ban treaty, by all nations. This can be done now. Test ban negotiations need not and should not await general disarmament talks.

—Second, stopping the production of fissionable materials for use in weapons and preventing their transfer to any nation now lacking nuclear weapons.

—Third, prohibiting the transfer of control over nuclear weapons to states that do not now own them.

—Fourth, keeping nuclear weapons from seeding new battle grounds in outer space.

—Fifth, gradually destroying existing nuclear weapons and converting their materials to peaceful uses; and —Finally, halting the unlimited testing and production of strategic nuclear delivery vehicles and gradually destroying them as well.

V

To destroy arms, however, is not enough. We must create even as we destroy—creating worldwide law and law enforcement as we outlaw worldwide war and weapons. In the world we seek, United Nations emergency forces which have been hastily assembled, uncertainly supplied and inadequately financed will never be enough.

Troops for U.N.

Therefore, the United States recommends that all member nations earmark special, peace-keeping units in their armed forces—to be on call to the United Nations—to be specially trained and quickly available—and with advance provision for financial and logistic support.

In addition, the American delegation will suggest a series of steps to improve the United Nations' machinery for the peaceful settlement of disputes—for on-the-spot fact-finding, mediation and adjudication—for extending the rule of international law. For peace is not solely a military or technical problem—it is primarily a problem of politics and people. And unless man can match his strides in weaponry and technology with equal strides in social and political development, our great strength, like that of the dinosaur, will become incapable of proper control—and man, like the dinosaur, will decline and disappear.

VI

As we extend the rule of law on earth, so must we also extend it to man's new domain: Outer space.

All of us salute the brave cosmonauts of the Soviet Union. The new horizons of outer space must not be given by the old bitter concepts of imperialism and sovereign claims. The cold reaches of universe must not become the new arena of an even colder war.

U.N. Space Control

To this end, we shall urge proposals extending the United Nations Charter to the limits of man's exploration in the universe, reserving outer space for peaceful use, prohibiting weapons of mass destruction in space or on celestial bodies, and opening the mysteries and benefits of space to every nation. We shall further propose cooperative efforts in weather prediction and eventually weather control. We shall propose, finally, a global system of communications satellites linking the whole world in telegraph, telephone, radio and television. The day need not be far away when such a system will televise the proceedings of this body to every corner of the world.

But the mysteries of outer space must not divert our eyes or our energies from the harsh realities that face our own fellow men. Political sovereignty is but a mockery without the means to meet poverty, illiteracy and disease. Self-determination is but a slogan if the future holds no hope.

The U.N. Decade

That is why my nation—which has freely shared its capital and MOSCOW—Moscow radio and television informed listeners of President John F. Kennedy's speech about 11 p.m. (3 p.m., Atlanta time) Monday toward the end of the evening news reports.

A brief dispatch by Tass, the Soviet news agency, merely said the President in a major policy speech before the U.N. General Assembly had touched on the following points: the activities of the United Nations, disarmament, the "so-called Berlin crisis" and colonialism.

Soviet authorities were evidently studying the text of the speech before making public more extensive excerpts and comments.

its technology to help others help themselves—now proposes officially designating this decade of the 1960s as the U.N. decade of development. Under the framework of that resolution, the U.N.'s existing efforts in promoting economic growth can be expanded and coordinated. Regional surveys and training institutes can pool the talents of many. New research, technical assistance and pilot projects can unlock the wealth of less developed lands and untapped waters. And development can become a cooperative, not competitive, enterprise—to enable all nations, however diverse in their systems and beliefs, to become in fact as well as law both free and equal states.

VIII

My country favors a world of free and equal states. We agree with those who say that colonialism is a key issue in this assembly. But let the full facts of that issue be discussed in full.

On the one hand is the fact that, since the close of the World War II, a worldwide declaration of independence has transformed nearly 1 billion people and 9 million square miles into 42 free and independent states. Less than 2 percent of the world's population now lives in "dependent" territories.

To Solve Problems

I do not ignore the remaining problems of traditional colonialism which still confront this body. Those problems will be solved, with patience, good will and determination. Within the limits of our responsibility in such matters, my country intends to be a participant, not merely an observer, in the peaceful, expeditious movement of nations from the status of colonies to the partnership of equals. That continuing tide of self-determination has our sympathy and our support.

But colonialism in its harshest form is not only the exploitation of new nations by old, of dark skins by light—or the subjugation of the poor by the rich. My nation was once a colony—and we know what colonialism means; the exploitation and subjugation of the weak by the powerful, of the many by the few, of the governed who have given no consent to be governed, whatever their continent, class or color.

And that is why there is no ignoring the fact that the tide of self-determination has not yet reached the Communist empire where a population far larger than that officially termed "dependent" lives under governments installed by foreign troops instead of free institutions—under a system which knows only one party and one belief—which suppresses free debate, free elections, free newspapers, books and trade unions—and which builds a wall to keep truth a stranger and its own citizens prisoners. Let us debate colonialism in full—and apply the principle of free choice and the practice of free plebiscites in every part of the globe.

IX

As President of the United States, I consider it my duty to report to this Assembly on two threats to the peace which are not on your crowded agenda, but which cause us, and most of you, the deepest concern.

War in Asia

The first threat on which I wish to report is widely misunderstood: The smoldering coals of war in Southeast Asia. South Viet Nam is already under attack—sometimes by a single assassin, sometimes by a band of guerrillas, recently by full battalions. The peaceful borders of Burma, Cambodia and India have been repeatedly violated. And the peaceful people of Laos are in danger of losing the independence they gained so short a time ago.

No one can call these "wars of liberation." For these are free countries living under governments of their own choosing. Nor are these aggressions any less real because men are knifed in their homes and not shot in the fields of battle.

The very simple question confronting the world community is whether measures can be devised to protect the small and the weak from such tactics. For if they are successful in Laos and South Viet Nam, the gates will open.

The United States seeks for itself no base, no territory, no special position in this area of any kind. We support a truly neutral and independent Laos, its people free from outside interference, living at peace with themselves and their neighbors, assured that their territory will not be used for attacks on others, and comparable (as Mr. Khrushchev and I agreed at Vienna) to Cambodia and Burma.

But now the negotiations over Laos are reaching a crucial stage. The cease-fire is at best precarious. Laotian territory is being used to infiltrate South Viet Nam. The world community must recognize that this potent threat to Laotian peace and freedom is indivisible from all other threats to their own.

Berlin Crisis

Secondly, I wish to report to you on the crisis over Germany and Berlin. This is not the time or the place for immoderate tones, but the world community is entitled to know the very simple issues as we see them. If there is a crisis it is because an existing island of free people is under pressure—because solemn agreements are being treated with contempt. Established international rights are being threatened with unilateral usurpation, peaceful circulation has been interrupted by barbed wire and concrete blocks.

One recalls the order of the Czar in Pushkin's "Boris Godunov": "Take steps at this very hour that our frontiers be fenced by barriers . . . that not a single soul pass o'er the border, that not a hare be able to run or a crow fly."

It is absurd to allege that we are threatening a war merely to prevent the Soviet Union and East Germany from signing a so-called "treaty" of peace. The Western Allies are not concerned with any paper arrangement the Soviets wish to make with a regime of their own creation, on territory occupied by their own troops and governed by their own agents. No such action can affect either our rights or our responsibilities.

Dangerous Crisis

If there is a dangerous crisis in Berlin—and there is—it is because of threats against the vital interests and the deep commitments of the Western powers and the freedom of West Berlin. We cannot yield these interests. We cannot fail these commitments. We cannot surrender the freedom of people for whom we are responsible. A "peace treaty" which would destroy the peace would be a fraud. A "free city" which would suffocate freedom would be an infamy.

For a city or a people to be truly free, they must have the secure right, without economic, political or police pressure, to make their own choice and to live their own lives. And as I have said before, if anyone doubts the extent to which our presence is desired by the people of West Berlin, we are ready to have that question submitted to a free vote in all Berlin and, if possible, among all the German people.

The elementary fact about this crisis is that it is unnecessary. The elementary tools for a peaceful settlement are found in the Charter. Under its law, agreements are to be kept, unless changed by all those who made them. Established rights are to be respected. The political disposition of peoples should rest upon their wishes, freely expressed in plebiscites or free elections. If there are legal problems, they can be solved by legal means. If there is a threat of force, it must be rejected. If there is desire for change, it must be subject to negotiation. And if there is negotiation, it must be rooted in mutual respect and concern for the rights of others.

Peace Possible

The Western powers have calmly resolved to defend, by whatever means are forced upon them, their obligations and their access to the free citizens of West Berlin and the self-determination of those citizens. This generation learned from bitter experience that either brandishing or yielding to threats can only lead to war. But firmness and reason can lead to the kind of peaceful solution in which my country profoundly believes.

We are committed to no rigid formula. We see no perfect solution. We recognize that troops and tanks can, for a time, keep a nation divided against its will, however unwise that policy may be.

But we believe a peaceful agreement is possible which protects the freedom of West Berlin and Allied presence and access, while recognizing the historic and legitimate interests of others in assuring European security.

The possibilities of negotiation are now being explored; it is too early to report what the prospects may be. For our part, we will be glad to report at the appropriate time that a solution has been found. For there is no need for a crisis over Berlin—and if those who created this crisis desire peace, there will always be peace in Berlin.

Fate of Mankind

The events and decisions of the next 10 months may well decide the fate of man of the next ten thousand years. There will be no avoiding those events. There will be no appeal from those decisions. And we shall be remembered either as the generation that turned this planet into a flaming pyre or the generation that let its vow "to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war."

In the endeavor to meet that vow, I pledge you every effort this nation possesses. I pledge you that we shall neither commit nor provoke aggression—that we shall neither flee nor invoke the threat of force—that we shall never negotiate out of fear and never fear to negotiate.

Terror is not a new weapon. Throughout history it has been used by those who could not prevail through persuasion or example. But inevitably they fail—either because men are not afraid to die for a life worth living—or because the terrorists themselves realize that free men could not be frightened by threats, and that aggression would meet its own response. And it is in the light of that history that every nation should know, be it friend or foe, that the United States has both the will and the weapons to join free men in standing up to their responsibilities.

World of Peace

But we are here to look across the world of threat. To the world of peace. In that search we cannot expect any final triumph—for new problems will always arise. We cannot expect all nations to adopt like systems—for conformity is the jailer of freedom. Nor can we expect to reach our goal by contrivance, by fiat or even by the wishes of all.

But however close we sometimes seem to that dark and final abyss, let no man of peace and freedom despair. For he does not stand alone. If we all can persevere—if we can in every land and office look beyond our own shores and ambitions—then surely the age will dawn in which the strong are just and the weak secure and the peace preserved forever.

Ladies and gentlemen of this Assembly—the decision is ours. Never have the nations of the world had so much to lose—or so much to gain. Together we shall save our planet—or together we shall perish in its flames. Save it we can—save it we must—and then shall we earn the eternal thanks of man and their best wishes as peace makers of God.

Wary GOPs Cheer For Kennedy, Too

high-sounding restatement of U.S. policies.

One Republican summed up this reaction with the comment to colleagues in the House cloakroom: "There has been too darn much talking. While we were talking, the Russians stole Laos from us."

PROTOCOL BLANKET

If the Republican complaints were muted for the moment, it was primarily because they were submerged beneath the outpouring of praise that political protocol calls for after any presidential speech before an international audience.

As the 1962 congressional campaign approaches, however, these complaints will be openly expressed, for they fit into the developing Republican strategy of attacking the administration for uncertainty and indecision in foreign policy.

A foretaste of the Republican attack came in a Senate speech by Barry Goldwater of Arizona, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee. The senator's speech was not prompted directly by the President's U.N. address but rather by reports from Berlin over the weekend that U.S. officials were telling West German officials that the partition of Germany would be accepted as a fact of life.

Indirectly, however, Goldwater touched on a principal point in the President's address, namely, the willingness of the United States to negotiate a peaceful settlement of the Berlin crisis that would protect the freedom of West Berlin and Western access to the city.

FEAR JUSTIFIED

Goldwater said the fear of many West Germans that the administration's "determination to enter into negotiations with the Russians would pave the way for Western concessions" was "perfectly legitimate."

"Any time diplomats begin talking of negotiations in a Soviet-created situation where there is nothing to negotiate," he said, "I say that is the time for the defenders of freedom to become wary."

The mixture of praise and caution about the impact upon the Soviet Union was illustrated in the statement of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, Senate Republican leader. The Illinois senator said the President had "uttered magnificent hope" but cautioned that "we are still confronted with the reality (of) what the reaction of the Communist world will be."

Dirksen said he was "glad to note the firmness with which (Kennedy) dealt with the Berlin situation." He also expressed approval of the President's presentation of this country's opposition to a three-man directorate of "troika" over the United Nations.

GREAT SPEECH

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield praised the President's address as "one of the great speeches of our generation," and expressed hope that it would "ease world tensions." However, the Montana senator cautioned that "what happens rests not with us but with the rest of the countries of the world, especially the Soviet Union."

Mansfield endorsed Kennedy's insistence upon one-man direction of the United Nations and renewed his suggestion that Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru or Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos be considered for the post of secretary general.

The Mansfield suggestion, made over the weekend, was sharply criticized by Goldwater, who said "the cause of freedom would go down the drain" if the United Nations were placed under the direction of a "wishy-washy 'neutral' like Nehru, who always manages to see some good in the nefarious Soviet moves."

GABE HOPE TO U.N.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said that with his "most remarkable and moving message" the President had achieved "a new height in statesmanship" and "gave hope to the United Nations at a time when it was literally on the critical list."

Humphrey, chairman of the Senate disarmament subcommittee, had particular praise for the President's disarmament proposals, which he said represented "truly a blueprint for world peace within which the security of each nation would be adequately protected."

Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, the House Democratic leader, said the President's speech properly emphasized that "the road to peace is through disarmament agreements, recognizing the practical situation that it has got to be step by step, level by level."

(Copyright 1961 by The New York Times Co.)

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — A smiling Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt gave a warm and informal greeting Monday to Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

The First Lady and the former first lady met unexpectedly when both were ushered to seats in the gallery of the General Assembly Hall reserved for delegation guests and advisers. Mrs. Roosevelt is an adviser to the U.S. delegation to the Assembly.

Mrs. Kennedy was seated in a front seat with four of her sisters-in-law: Mrs. Peter Lawford, Mrs. R. Sargent Shriver, Mrs. Stephen B. Smith and Mrs. Robert Kennedy.

When Mrs. Roosevelt saw Mrs. Kennedy she called a welcoming greeting. Mrs. Kennedy jumped up and both stretched across a row of seats to clasp hands and exchange a friendly word.

The air of informality extended also to Mrs. Kennedy's reception to the United Nations. The First Lady had been expected to arrive with the President or in his party and officials remained waiting to escort her to a seat. But her party made an informal arrival and, accompanied only by a delegation officer, had entered the hall and taken their seats unobtrusively several minutes before the President's arrival. Few delegates noticed the party or looked in that direction.

Mercer--Man of Mercy

By GEORGE VANCE

Dr. William Staughton, president of Columbia College (now Georgetown University), once inquired of a Georgia gentleman about the health of one of his Columbia trustees, Jesse Mercer.

"He is very well," the Georgian told him.

Knowing his trustee's outstanding record as a Baptist minister in Georgia, Dr. Staughton pressed the conversation with the comment: "He exerts a great influence in your state."

HIS WORD WAS LAW

The Georgian smiled and said, "His word is law."

"I am sure," the college president countered, "it is gospel."

Both men were close to the truth. Preacher Jesse Mercer's word came close to being both law and gospel in this state during the late 18th and early 19th century.

"Jesse Mercer was the most distinguished and influential Baptist ministers ever reared in the state," according to the Baptist historian, Dr. William Cathcart.

INFLUENCED STATE

"It is doubtful if anyone, under the providence of God, ever exerted a more beneficial influence among the Baptists of Georgia."

Tradition says that young Mercer began his march to his honored position among Georgia Baptists by being immersed in a barrel of water by his preacher father, Silas.

The devout Silas had moved from Halifax, N.C. (where Jesse was born in 1769) to a Wilkes County plantation from whence he made his rounds of the frontier wilderness on horseback, preaching the gospel and organizing many Baptist churches, including the ones at Hutton's Fork (now Sagdis), Whatley's Mill (now Bethesda in Greene County), Powelton (Hancock County) and Phillips Mill (Wilkes County).

SON ORDAINED

It was at Phillips Mill that the elder Mercer had the joy of ordaining his young bridegroomson in 1787. Although young Jesse always had been a good boy, Silas had watched him pass through a depressing religious struggle before he decided to follow the career of his father.

Jesse's first pastorate was at Silas' old church, Hutton's Fork; and after the father's death in 1796, Jesse took to his father's circuit, serving Phillips Mill, Powelton and Bethesda for 39, 32 and 28 years respectively.

Young Mercer, despite a smattering of formal education, developed into a powerful preacher. He was not a hair lifter in the pulpit like his father. His voice was neither strong nor distinguished, and his gesticulations were rather clumsy.

HEART WAS PURE

But his heart was pure and his character saintly, and the words of his sermons—which were doctrinal for the most part—rang true to the people who flocked to hear him.

So great was Mercer's appeal that he drew 149 baptisms in one year at his four churches—and, don't forget, these and other churches like them were arbiters of community behavior in those frontier days.

All manner of sin—theft, adultery, cursing, dancing—were taken up by the congregation, and the guilty were judged and punished by their church. As a recent clerk of the Powelton church said, "Why, right on down to the 1880's, this church was the court of law around here."

STATUS RISES

As Mercer's status grew to dynamic proportions, his influence naturally extended into the politics of Georgia, particularly after the Yazoo fraud whipped up a gigantic wave of righteous indignation across the state.

Mercer spoke out against those who attempted to bribe Georgia out of its lands from the Chatahoochee to the Yazoo rivers, for he was strong in his strife for righteousness.

In 1798 he was named as a delegate to the state convention which was to rewrite the state constitution and wipe the Yazoo Act from the official records of

GREAT BAPTIST
Jesse Mercer

Georgia. At that convention, he checked a move to bar ministers from serving as state legislators by offering a ridiculous amendment to include doctors and lawyers as well.

UPHELD PRINCIPLE

Ministers, he felt, should not take an active part in the "everyday politics of a country" unless the fundamental principles lying at the base of government were threatened.

No doubt he felt the Yazoo fraud was a sufficient threat, for he took an active part in the subsequent party politics and carried his county each election for the Troup party against that of John Clark, who had been mixed up in the land grabbing scheme.

When George M. Troup finally beat the Clarkites for the governorship, Historian W. H. Sparks reported Mercer was heard uttering a prayer in the crowd awaiting the results of that election.

WE THANK THEE

"Oh! Lord!" Sparks quotes the preacher. "We thank Thee. The state is redeemed from the rule of the devil and John Clark."

In 1816 Mercer ran an unsuccessful race for the state senate. In 1818 it was reported—and later disproved—that he turned his funeral eulogy of Gov. William Rabun into a political oration. And in 1833 friends put heavy pressure upon him to run for the governorship.

But by that year Mercer was "surfeited with politics."

At least that was the reason he gave for paying $3,000 for the Columbia Star of Philadelphia.

Timbermen Vie Here for Army Pacts

Timbermen from across the nation are bidding this week in Atlanta for contracts to sell 20 million board feet of lumber to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

C. V. Claycomb of the Corps of Engineers said that before the lumber industry representatives go back to "the states of Washington and Maine and everywhere in between" they will have sold that much lumber—worth about $1.75 million—to the U.S. Defense department.

The Engineers buy lumber about three or four times a year for all branches of the armed services to use in defense installations.

The reverse auction, with the public—the lumber industry—doing the selling instead of the buying, opened this week in the Pompeii Room of the Biltmore and will last "about three days," according to Claycomb.

Disney Dreams Up A Color TV Teaser

By PAUL JONES

Owners of color TV sets must have found, as I did, the new Walt Disney Sunday night show a breathtakingly beautiful hour.

But I'm wondering how owners of conventional black and white sets reacted to the first 30 minutes of the program which was devoted almost solely to tantalizing—or should I say tormenting—those who did not own color sets.

The constant reference to color during the first 30 minutes would have forced me to switch channels or to make plans to buy a color set had not my home already been equipped to receive color. What the first portion of the show amounted to was merely a color commercial. It was highlighted by a skit featuring color host Ludwig Von Drake, Donald Duck's uncle, in which he did a ditty titled "Green With Envy, Red With Anger, Purple Passion Blues."

The second portion of the show, on the contrary, was the sort of thing that would delight both owners of color and conventional black and white sets.

The closing portion featured Donald Duck in a fanciful world of numbers, triangles, rectangles, squares—a bit that was reminiscent of the excellent Bell Telephone Hour science series of two seasons ago.

The Disney premiere actually was a full-blown cartoon show in color. The Disney touch was evident everywhere, and while it was lavish it somehow didn't measure up to what I had anticipated Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color would be.

I was tempted several times to switch to the Ed Sullivan show, which, had it been in color, would have dominated the evening.

I NEVER regarded Maverick or even Steve Allen as serious threats to Ed Sullivan's dominance on Sunday night. Sullivan has always had good acts on his show and he has always had variety. It is difficult for a show which follows a stereotyped format to top a big vaudeville show such as Sullivan's.

But I believe NBC-TV, with its two hours of color, starting with Meet the Press, continuing with the Bullwinkle Show, Disney's presentation, and concluding with Bonanza and Show of the Week, poses a threat to Sullivan and, for that matter, to the ABC-TV lineup.

The three-and-a-half hours of color programming should provide a strong inducement for many owners of conventional sets to convert to color. At any rate, NBC-TV's Sunday night programming has been improved to a point where Sunday nights at home won't be dull any more.

MAJOR EMPHASIS this season, as in the past, is on new programming. Agency and network publicists devote most of their attention to launching the new product, leaving the old shows to shift for themselves.

But I'd like to point out that Garry Moore is returning to the air Tuesday night. Garry has what I consider one of the best shows on television. He consistently comes up with the best talent and original production ideas. While some might take issue with this I believe he has discovered or developed more "new" stars than Jack Paar.

Candid Camera was a featured bit on his show before taking over a regular Sunday night spot of its own.

Carol Burnett, who is a regular on Garry's show, is one of the most talented comedienne anywhere.

Carol, Gary, Marion Lorne, Durward Kirby—all regulars—and Alan King, a semi-regular, will be on deck when the show begins its new season Tuesday.

A highlight of the program will be a skit involving special guest Julie Andrews and Carol. They will sing a ditty titled "If I Only Had a Brain."

Incidentally, Julie will make another guest appearance later in the season. Others who will appear on the Moore show more than once are: Eileen Farrell, Carol Lawrence, Jack Carter, Gwen Verdon and George Gobel.

Truck Flips, Burns, Kills 6

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—A truck loaded with 21 persons overturned in Jacksonville Sunday night and burst into flames, killing six.

Thirteen passengers in the truck were hospitalized. Police said the truck flipped over as it attempted a left turn. Officers theorized the gasoline tank ignited from sparks thrown off in the skid.

IF YOU SEE SALLY—

Harry Jackson, left, as a traveling salesman, listens in horror as he is told the eerie truth about the girl he has picked up on the road in "If I See You Sally," an Alcoa Presents offering at 10 p.m. on Channel 11 Tuesday.

Actor Tierney Put on Wagon By Magistrate

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI).

Movie tough guy Lawrence Tierney's crashing of an Elizabeth Taylor-Eddie Fisher party last June 30 has netted him a suspended sentence and one year of probation.

Municipal Judge Adolph Alexander accepted Tierney's guilty plea to one count of battery when the defendant appeared in court unexpectedly Friday. Trial had been set for Monday.

Judge Alexander suspended a disturbing-the-peace charge and warned Tierney he was not to drink for a year as a term of probation.

The 42-year-old actor, who portrayed gangster John Dillinger on the screen more than 15 years ago, was subdued by private guards at the post-midnight party when he swung at an officer as he was being ushered out. The party was given by the Fishers for nearly 100 touring Soviet dancers of the Moiseyev Dance Troupe.

Powell Goes Dude; Laramie in Color

By TV SCOUT

BEST BET—The Dick Powell Show begins Tuesday; this season, Powell is hosting an hour-long anthology series and there's not a Western in sight.

First up is "Who Killed Julie Greer?" (Powell had wanted to start with another one, but the network held out for this.) It's a fair mystery which dedicated whodunit fans will be able to solve without batting a private eye. The gimmick is that the roles of Julie's friends, whose names are found in her address book, are played by top stars in cameo appearances.

Thus, Ronald Reagan is a cowboy actor, Ralph Bellamy a judge, Mickey Rooney a laundromat owner, Jack Carson a beatnik cafe operator, Edgar Bergen a veterinarian, Kay Thompson a blind landlady, Lloyd Bridges a publicity fighter and Nick Adams a publicity hound. Powell is a field is in her Jayne Mansfield guise as his chief stooge.

9-9:30 (Ch. 5) New Tuesday is Ichabod and Me, which falls in the TV spectrum about halfway between The Real McCoys and Charlie Weaver. Robert Sterling is "Me"—a newspaperman who buys a small-town paper—George Chandler as Ichabod—the small-town Sgt. Bilko who sells him the paper. The basic premise is the oldie about the country bumpkin who constantly outwits the city slicker.

10-11 (Ch. 5)—The Garry Moore Show returns with regulars Carol Burnett, Marion Lorne and Durward Kirby in action as always. The guests are Julie Andrews and Alan King, the latter a semi-regular here.

10-11 (Ch. 2)—Cain's Hundred concludes Tuesday the two-part which opens the series. Martin Gabel is back as the gangland boss who double-crossed the others, giving Mark Richman, as mouthpiece-turned-sleuth, a chance to get him good.

8-9:30—Alfred Hitchcock Presents repeats Polly Bergen in a non-singing role of a tough singer. She's being blackmailed by her ex-husband (who once took a rap for her), so, ergo, he must be eliminated. She does the job with the help of a gasoline credit card. There's a nice touch of irony at the end.

Sachs' Ex-Wife Asks Divorce Annulment

DOUBLE SPRINGS, Ala., (UPI)—The former wife of Walter E. Sachs, onetime partner in Goldman Sachs & Co., investment firm of New York City, asked the Circuit Court Monday to annul their Alabama divorce. Sachs, 76, retired recently from the investment business.

Mrs. Sachs, 49, contended in her bill of complaint that neither she nor her husband was a resident of Alabama when they obtained the divorce last year.

Also, she contended that she came to Alabama at the time of the divorce because of misrepresentation. Her attorney said the misrepresentation involved a threat to damage her reputation.

Her bill of complaint said, "She was not guilty of any misconduct but was very much afraid and upset as a result of the threat made against her."

3 Negroes Ready For Classes at Tech

Three Negro freshmen signed up for classes and paid their fees at Georgia Tech Monday, thereby officially becoming students on the institution's records.

They will start classes Wednesday along with other students.

All three Negroes signed up for what a Tech spokesman described as "perfectly normal" freshman schedules, varying in load from 18 to 20 quarter hours.

Ford Greene, majoring in chemistry, registered for the heaviest load.

His schedule includes chemistry, English, mathematics, drawing, Army ROTC, German, physical training and a one-hour course taken by all freshmen, "orientation."

Ralph Long Jr. and Lawrence Williams, both electrical engineering majors, signed up for 18 hours each.

Long will take English, mathematics, chemistry, orientation, German, drawing, Air Force ROTC and physical training.

Williams' schedule calls for intermediate French, mathematics, physical training, English, chemistry, drawing, Air Force ROTC and orientation.

Americans Losing Right to Give, Foundation's Basil O'Connor Says

By BARBARA MILZ

Americans are in danger of losing one of their traditional freedoms, freedom of choice in "giving," Basil O'Connor, president of The National Foundation, warned here Monday.

O'Connor, in Atlanta to attend a regional National Foundation pre-campaign meeting, said, "One group of people have distorted the whole concept of 'giving' and one of their good reasons, they assert, is at least they are making 'giving' easier."

ELIMINATING 'RIGHT'

When you eliminate the right of people to give to the one or more organizations to which they want to give, you must understand what you are doing to the individual," he said in an interview.

"Our younger generation will never understand the concept of giving—or of charity—we had 20 years ago. As things are going, it will be only a short time when, in honesty, we may have to abandon the term."

"These days there are those who think they are asking us to 'give,' yet they are speaking in terms of 'assessments,' 'payroll deductions' and 'budget quotas,'" he said.

O'Connor, outspoken head of the National Foundation, also has served as president of the American National Red Cross. The Dartmouth and Harvard educated lawyer has served with the National Foundation since it was founded to fight polio in 1938.

The former law partner of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, O'Connor is engaged in a heated campaign to keep the National Foundation from being forced into uniting with other agencies of any type in order to be eligible to receive contribu-

State's War on TB Hailed By U.S. Leader of Drive

Georgia's progress in stamping out tuberculosis isn't just "in line"—it's "at the head of the line in some fields," Dr. Stuart Willis told Atlanta's Public Health nurses Monday.

Dr. Willis, president of the National Tuberculosis Association, said, "No matter how many people think TB is no longer a threat, the truth is that we still have TB with us."

"At this time," he said, "there is a large seedbed of 35 to 45 million people who harbor TB bacillus in their bodies. Each year, we can expect about 3 per cent of these to break down with the disease."

Telling the Public Health nurses how they can help, he said, "For one thing, we need a register of all persons who react to TB testing. Ideally, these people should be X-rayed at least once a year."

"We have to tell the people the extent of the problem. When a person in a family has the disease, we must make sure the family knows the danger of contagion. In short, we have to speak to people on their own terms. Don't say 'sputum' when you mean 'spit,' and folks will know what you mean."

complete disarmament has not only been agreed upon but has been actually achieved."

3. The United States and Britain stand ready to sign "today" a treaty "assuring the end of nuclear tests of all kinds, in every environment, under workable controls."

4. All members should earmark special units in their armed forces, trained and quickly available, for use in a U.N. peace force.

U.N. SPACE CONTROL

5. The United States will propose U.N. control to reserve outer space for peaceful use. It also wants the United Nations to be the vehicle for cooperative efforts in weather prediction and control as well as global communications by satellites.

6. The United States proposed that the 1960's be designated as "the decade of development" to promote conversion of all countries into "free and equal nations" through "a cooperative and not a competitive enterprise."

7. The United States "intends to be a participant, and not merely an observer, in the peaceful, expeditious movement of nations from the status of colonies to the partnership of equals." But, the President said in his only direct attack on the Soviet Union, "there is no ignoring the fact that the tide of self-determination has not yet reached the Communist empire."

8. "The smoldering coals of war in Southeast Asia" threaten South Viet Nam. The borders of Burma, Cambodia and India have been repeatedly violated. Negotiations on Laos are reaching a crucial stage with the rainy season coming to an end. The United States "seeks for itself no base, no territory, no special position in this area of any kind."

Except for the Communist bloc and Cuba, delegates in the jam-packed assembly hall joined in 45 seconds of applause—long by U.N. standards—as Kennedy finished with this prayerful adjuration:

"The decision is ours. Never have the nations of the world had so much to lose—or so much to gain. Together we shall save our planet—or together we shall perish in its flames. Save it we can—and save it we must—and then we shall earn the eternal thanks of man and as peace-makers the eternal blessing of God."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, scheduled to answer the President in the Assembly at 2 p.m. Tuesday, joined in the standing applause as Kennedy was introduced by Assembly President Mongi Slim of Tunisia. He did not the intricacies of policy making. This view was reflected in the two-inch headline that ran across the front page of the mass-circulation Bild Zeitung of West Berlin, asking:

"Is Germany now being sold out?"

The only "reality" Germans would recognize, the paper said, was "that one part of Germany has been turned into one big concentration camp, that 16 million people are being terrorized by a clique of conscienceless aides of Moscow."

"No German government chief," the paper went on, "will ever put his signature to a document which expressly recognizes the tearing apart of Germany, neither in the near nor the distant future."

SECOND LEVEL

The second level of reaction is among officials. They are distressed, not so much at what is being said and written by Americans, although all this is painful for them, but at the manner in which they learn of American government thinking from the newspapers before, these officials claim, the issues involved have been discussed with the West German government.

There is a way, it is believed here, of bringing the German people to accept the remainder of the bill without raising the spectre of nationalism or inviting a mood of neutrality in the country.

WANT CONSULTATIONS

But acceptance, officials here believe, depends on prior consultation by Washington of West Germany, rather than the presentation to the Germans of decisions they have had no chance to influence.

Bohn is embittered when, before any official word is received from Washington, officials here can read, for example, the article by James Reston in Monday morning's New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution saying Germany's borders with Poland, de facto recognition of East Germany and West Germany's future armaments are all negotiable issues with the Russians.

A West German government official said:

"You told us after the war that we would never be rearmend, and we believed you to be so right that when you asked us to rearm the whole country opposed us. And still we did rearm."

"Now you newspapers write as though we no longer counted, that perhaps you can make a deal with the Russians on what kind of arms we should have, that perhaps rearming us was a mistake. You can not have it every way just to suit your purposes."

Representatives of federal employee groups said this resulted primarily from the practice of

Congressmen of Both Parties Unite to Pay Tribute to Rep. Brown on Floor of House

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Sixteen congressmen from both parties and every section of the nation joined members of the Georgia delegation in expressing sorrow at the death of former Rep. Paul Brown of Elberton.

Rep. Robert Stephens of Athens, who succeeded Brown as the representative from Georgia's 10th District this year, led the House in tribute.

In his first speech on the House floor, Stephens said of Brown: "He served his state well. He served his nation well. He served his constituents well."

"... He was loyal. He was gentle. He was conscientious and he was beloved of his people."

Stephens pointed out that Brown served in Congress for 28 years and had "only token opposition" in the whole period—and that only twice.

"I never voted against him," Stephens said.

Rep. Stephens planned to leave late Monday to attend the funeral Tuesday morning in Elberton. Representatives Phil Landrum and Carl Vinson, both already in Georgia, also were expected to attend.

grievance committee members being approved, and sometimes chosen by management.

The Southeast hearing headed by Assistant Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds delved into such questions as whether federal employees should be unionized—and if so, to what extent and with what powers.

In testimony at the hearing, which was one of seven held throughout the nation, employee spokesmen developed the theme that grievance committees are needed which are not under the effective control of management.

Representatives of some federal employee unions asserted that interpretations and grievances are just about their only province since wages, hours and many working conditions are generally set by law.

Specific grievances listed involved lack of training for supervisory personnel for a particular job, particularly involving employee relations. At an afternoon press conference, Reynolds said that although government policy concerning private labor is clearly stated, there is no clear policy for those in government service.

State Hires Expert for Farm Push

Agriculture commissioner Phil Campbell said Monday that a Georgia Tech economist has joined his staff to help start a big new farm products marketing program.

Dr. John Fulmer, professor in industrial management at Tech, will help launch the new Commodities Promotion Division, Campbell said.

At the same time, Campbell disclosed switches in his staff to make Boyce Dyer head of the new division. Dyer has been in charge of farmer's markets. E. L. Brinson will move into Dyer's old job.

HARRISON COMMENTS

Georgia farmers already are collecting more than a half-million dollars per year off their sales of farm products to launch the new program, Campbell added.

Dr. Fulmer will help primarily in setting up the industrial program to process and market Georgia foodstuffs, Campbell said.

Georgia Tech President Edwin Harrison said, "Agriculture in the state needs all the assistance it can possibly get in the way of developing programs and developing markets. We are delighted we had a chance to contribute."

Trucking Hit By Squeeze, Leader Says

Rising costs in an "era of intensified competition with other forms of transportation" are squeezing profits from the trucking industry, a national trucking leader said here Monday.

Clarence A. Kelley, first vice president of American Trucking Association, spoke at a luncheon opening the organization's three-day National Industrial Relations Forum at the Hilton Inn.

He said the trend of costs against profits was evident across the country but is particularly true in trucking where "labor costs represent a much higher percentage of revenue than is the case with its competition."

He said labor costs take about 54 per cent of sales in his firm, Dixie Ohio Express Inc.

As a result of this pressure, he said, "it is becoming more and more important for the trucking industry to do a better job of attracting high quality employees and helping them grow and develop in their jobs."

Individual growers, 4-H clubs and state associations "will bring to Atlanta the finest farm produce the state affords," a spokesman for the sponsors reported.

Growers will bring turkey, quail, sausage, hams, beans, potatoes, cabbage, sorghum, greens, scuppernongs, apples, cider, meal, jams and jellies, flowers, tomatoes, pepper and relish, peanuts, sugar cane and honey.

A special court at that time sentenced Wodaju to 10 years imprisonment but he appealed his sentence to the Supreme Court. The court's decision was to sentence Wodaju to death by hanging.

Artists Raise Enough To Buy 2 Kangaroos

Atlanta artists who "jumped in to provide Grant Park Zoo with a kangaroo to replace the one killed by a hit-and-run driver recently were "doubly" successful.

Friday night they staged an auction with donated pieces of art to raise the necessary funds for the Parks department.

When it was all over, Jack Delius, Parks department office manager, accepted the donation of $592.50—enough to buy two kangaroos, he estimated.

Macon, the incumbent, is not seeking reelection.

Youth Dies After Fight; Decaturite Is Charged

An Avondale youth Monday died of injuries sustained in a fight, police said, and a warrant was issued charging a 20-year-old Decatur resident with murder.

Johnny Gunn Jr., 19, of Indian Creek Drive, Clarkston, was injured Saturday in a fight at a drive-in restaurant in Avondale, DeKalb Detective Lt. R. C. Elam and Detective J. W. Crunkleton said. Officers said he died Monday of a cervical hemorrhage.

Ford's Wright Salutes Drive
For 70 Community Services

By MARJORY RUTHERFORD

Atlanta volunteers launched a $3,817,547 United Appeal campaign for the five-county metropolitan Atlanta area here Monday.

Drive leaders seeking funds for 70 community services of Community Chest and the Red Cross were saluted by James O. Wright, Ford Motor Co. vice president, for starting "a great human adventure."

"It's fashionable these days to attach cosmic significance to the united giving movement," Wright told a luncheon rally at which downtown Rotary and Kiwanis clubs were hosts.

"Some people suggest an all-out drive would be an antidote for our troubles in Berlin, the Congo, and wherever the cold war is fought. I can't go quite that far, but I do believe that a successful community campaign reflects what might be called the traditional American way of doing things . . . Whatever its implications abroad, this is a goal well worth the work."

Wright assured volunteers they will be selling "an unbeatable product, a package that provides more services to more people, more efficiently, at lower per capita cost than does any other."

Over the nation, he said, "united-giving" campaigns last year raised almost half a billion dollars, 2.7 per cent more than the year before and 98 per cent over the total 10 years ago.

Maynard G. Smith, luncheon rally chairman, expressed confidence in Atlanta's ability to "go over the top" in this year's biggest drive to date. Mayor William B. Hartsfield and Mayor-elect Ivan Allen Jr. sat together at a head table with community leaders including the campaign's three general chairmen, Lee Burge, Wilton Looney and M. L. Weiss.

This year's drive for the first time includes five counties—Fulton, DeKalb, Cobb, Clayton and Gwinnett. Deadline for raising the $3,817,547 goal is Nov. 9.

Your Aid Buys Ray Of Hope

What happens to your United Appeal dollars?

Ask "Uncle John" at Highview Nursing Home . . . or a disabled but proudly busy workingman at Goodwill Industries . . . or little Gail, with a bobbing head-motion and a smile that breaks your heart, at the Cerebral Palsy Center.

They may not know the exact figures.

But they do know from first-hand experience that United Appeal dollars—your investment in this current big campaign for Community Chest and Red Cross in metropolitan Atlanta's five counties—buy homes and nursing care and training for the sick, the aged, and the handicapped.

Seven United Appeal agencies providing these priceless services will use $308,156—or 9 per cent of the campaign budget to help 3,990 persons this year.

"Or they will," a drive volunteer cautioned, "if Atlantans give enough to make our goal."

At United Appeal homes for the aged, senior citizens like "Uncle John" and a gentle little old lady who crochets her Christmas presents with arthritis-crippled hands get the specialized care they need. And—just as important, experts point out—they find there new interests and companionship.

At the Cerebral Palsy Center youngsters who cannot walk or talk are learning these basic skills. It was there that Gail learned to smile.

Goodwill Industries is one of the United Appeal organizations where handicapped men and women—despite blindness, illness, or age—learn to take care of themselves. Whenever possible, they are trained for jobs so that they may become independent. ("Not charity but a chance" has been their plea, and it is answered here.)

Your United Appeal dollars also help bed-ridden young and old in another important way. Patients can receive bedside nursing care at home while visiting nurses teach their families how to make the sick more comfortable.

Children and adults who can't afford dental care receive it free at another United Appeal agency, the Ben Massell Dental Clinic.

"For the sick, the aged, and the handicapped," a campaign leader summed up, "United Appeal dollars buy skillful care and guidance. They replace despair with hope."

Your campaign gift will be "spread around" to aid 70 different community services next year, he pointed out. The experts have figured what it will take: $3,817,547. And a United Appeal spokesman urged:

"Give enough to go around!"

Statesmen to Dictators— Leadership Is Open to All

Thursday some five hundred young people will gather at the Young Women's Christian Association to scrutinize the road map of the charted thoroughfares to that critical point called leadership.

They will come from communities all over the state to attend the annual Georgia Leadership Institute, sponsored by the Pilot Club of Atlanta, and co-sponsored by several civic, service and education organizations.

The theme this year is a sobering "Leadership, the Foundation of Freedom," and when the five adult panelists met with Henry R. Malone of the Georgia State College of Business Administration, who is serving as chairman, to discuss their various assignments, they were uncomfortably aware that the road to leadership is a wide highway which is as open and accessible to unworthy demagogues and rabble rousers as it is to the valiant, selfless standardbearers.

Between those extremes, there are also a host of travelers who fall somewhere in between, depending upon the forces that motivate them to leadership.

What the Institute hopes to achieve is the awakening of young persons to the potential of our times, and to help them gain assurance that they, as individuals, have both the power and the responsibility to make their own contribution to our common destiny.

Leadership, unshackled by honor, conscience, intelligence, is as dangerous a utilization of personal dynamism as can be envisioned.

History has been punctuated more memorably by evil leaders than by noble ones. It may be easier to infect and inflame by appeals to hatred, prejudice, avarice and self-interest than any of the finer instincts.

Nor does one need any special God-given talents of charm or grace on which to base assertions of leadership. Even the most repulsive man or woman, with enough sound and fury, attract his own followers. Hitler, of course, is the classic example of a mad fervor that paralyzed a cultivated people into literal worship.

Knowing these pitfalls, Thursday's Institute will attempt to illuminate the steps toward individual expression, with the hope that Georgia's young men and women will take the lighted path as the true foundation of freedom.

Keep in Trim: Give The Arms Exercise

By IDA JEAN KAIN

If you don't like the look of your upper arms in sleeveless dresses, you need double-action exercises to tone the triceps. Those muscles that flank the backs of the upper arms tend to get soft and flabby rather quickly.

I speak from experience. Having my arm in a sling for three weeks left me with sagging triceps. Horrors! So, I've been exercising with a three pound weight held in each hand.

The principle is this: When an iron dumbbell is held at the end of an exercising arm, this gives twice as much pull to underexercised muscles and twice the toning results. It's magic!

The equipment needed is iron dumbbells of two or three pound weights . . . later five pound dumbbells can be used. As a substitute for weights, exercise with a heavy book grasped in each hand.

Position: Lie on back, dumbbells at shoulders. Have elbows straight out from shoulders, this helps to straighten out the shoulders. Legs may be straight-down, or knees flexed, soles of feet flat on floor, whichever feels most comfortable.

Action: Raise dumbbells to arms' length above chest . . . touch dumbbells together, separate and lower to original position. Breathe in as you extend arms, breathe out as arms are lowered. Repeat five times only . . . exercising slowly. Relax and rest.

To test exactly what you are accomplishing, perform exercise with only one hand. Place the free hand on the droopy triceps muscles on the soft underpart of the upper arm. Feel the action as you raise the dumbbell slowly aloft.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Roche of County Kildare, Ireland, will arrive by plane Oct. 6 to visit

Mr. and Mrs. Vol T. Blacknall on Hillside Drive. Unfortunately, the couple will not arrive in time to attend the Blacknalls' wedding anniversary party to be given at the Coach House earlier that evening by their daughter, Mrs. Valerie Foster.

Apparently, Mrs. Blacknall's enthusiasm for Atlanta Art Association projects is contagious. For when Mr. and Mrs. Roche learned that the Flea Market and Auction, sponsored by the women's committee of the association, opens on the date of their arrival here, they were inspired to send gifts.

Consequently, when the International Booth opens at the Flea Market, some of its finest articles will be two jeweled pins and tiaras sent from Ireland by the Roches.

Saturday evening, Oct. 7, Mr. Blacknall will give a stag party at the Commerce Club for Mr. Roche while Mrs. Blacknall, Mrs. Roche and Mrs. Foster are dining at the Coach House. Sunday, Oct. 8, the Blacknalls will honor their visitors with a small brunch at their home. That evening the Piedmont Driving Club will be the scene of a buffet dinner party to be given by Mrs. Jack Pappenheimer.

Whom Do YOU Trust? Those Who Trust You!

By JUNE WILSON

In August, Management Magazine printed a thoughtful article about why good secretaries quit and came to the conclusion that the basic underlying reason is general boredom, lack of sufficient responsibility and work load.

There were many tips for management in this piece, comprised of opinions gleaned from secretaries of some of the nation's top businessmen . . . and ranging from taking sincere interest in a secretary's life and problems to the seemingly simple art of letting her know that what she does is appreciated.

There was something missing, maybe because it is taken for granted.

And yet, to the working woman, too often it is the one absent ingredient which prevents a good job from being an integral part of her life . . . the essential element of trust.

It may be when a man fails to confide in his secretary that it isn't a lack of trust, but a lack of thoughtfulness. He merely fails to "consider" her.

But it looks like distrust; it acts like distrust, and, like distrust, it destroys her confidence.

It seems unbelievable that any company could be bought, sold or undergo merger while the secretary to the top man is unaware of it until the hour it takes place, but it happens.

It is a deep mystery among women why it is that one may work for a man long enough to demonstrate even to the satisfaction of St. Peter the difference between professional interest and a woman's curiosity, and yet be the last to know what really goes on in a business.

Trust is a magical gift. Those who trust us are the ones to whom we give our unstinting best, our deepest devotion.

It is they, only they, who summon from our formless, undiscovered depths talents and capabilities we do not know are there.

Those with a deep ability to trust make the best leaders because one talent arising from belief in others is the development of the best that is in them.

And though he who cannot, will not, does not trust others may indeed climb the high ladder of success, a woman instinctively knows that by his failure to believe in other people he automatically shows himself untrustworthy.

Gifts Precede Visitors From Ireland

By KATHRYN GRAYBURN
Atlanta Constitution Society Editor
Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Roche of County Kildare, Ireland, will arrive by plane Oct. 6 to visit

Mr. and Mrs. Vol T. Blacknall on Hillside Drive. Unfortunately, the couple will not arrive in time to attend the Blacknalls' wedding anniversary party to be given at the Coach House earlier that evening by their daughter, Mrs. Valerie Foster.

Apparently, Mrs. Blacknall's enthusiasm for Atlanta Art Association projects is contagious. For when Mr. and Mrs. Roche learned that the Flea Market and Auction, sponsored by the women's committee of the association, opens on the date of their arrival here, they were inspired to send gifts.

Consequently, when the International Booth opens at the Flea Market, some of its finest articles will be two jeweled pins and tiaras sent from Ireland by the Roches.

Saturday evening, Oct. 7, Mr. Blacknall will give a stag party at the Commerce Club for Mr. Roche while Mrs. Blacknall, Mrs. Roche and Mrs. Foster are dining at the Coach House. Sunday, Oct. 8, the Blacknalls will honor their visitors with a small brunch at their home. That evening the Piedmont Driving Club will be the scene of a buffet dinner party to be given by Mrs. Jack Pappenheimer.

Mrs. R. Emmett Mitchell will be hostess at a luncheon Oct. 9 at the Capital City Club honoring Mrs. Roche. The Chattahoochee Plantation Club will form the setting Oct. 10 for the luncheon to be given by Mrs. Foster.

Atlantans who met the Roches on a previous visit are looking forward to their return. They will remain until Oct. 11 when they depart for New York.

FOLLOWING an extensive round of entertaining for a visitor, a tired socialite was overheard to say, "If he doesn't go home soon, I'll have to go to a rest home!"

VICKIE NIMETZ, of Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada, visited in Atlanta over the weekend and attended the University of Georgia-Alabama football game Saturday in Athens.

THE INTERNATIONAL CLUB, across the street from the new airport, will be the scene of Mrs. J. D. Hagy's luncheon today.

Mrs. Josef Primas has issued invitations to a luncheon Wednesday to be held in the club's Early American dining room with its charming open hearth.

Mrs. Billie Tovell entertained at a luncheon there Monday.

THE REV. AND MRS. J. DOUGLAS SWAGERTY will be honored at a reception Oct. 7 in celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

No formal invitations will be issued, but friends of the honorees are invited to call between 4 and 6 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of Druid Hills Methodist Church.

Hostesses will be the Swagerty's three daughters, Mrs. Paul L. Gupit of Atlanta; Mrs. William Owen Hope of Mulga, Ala.; and Mrs. J. Howard Miller of Dothan, Ala., assisted by the couple's granddaughters. It is requested that no gifts be presented.

They Eat, Drink,
Sleep Rush Week!

By JEAN ROONEY

Name . . . hometown . . . major. Most freshmen co-eds at Emory are mumbling this in their sleep by the end of rush week.

The suspenseful sorority event ended last weekend, with almost 200 pretty frosh and transfers gaining sorority pledge status.

An eager beaver rushee took in all 25 parties from Saturday, Sept. 15 to Saturday, Sept. 22. She shook hundreds of hands, murmured niceties to dozens of strange faces and gave her name, hometown and major at least 500 times.

It all started with "ice water parties" a week ago, built momentum through costume parties in mid-week and wound up with serious, hard-sell teas last weekend.

It was a toss-up on who was the most pressured—the rushees racing from party to party, new face to new face; or the sorority rushers, with their on-their-knees rushing technique, ever-ready smiles and peppy singing.

"My knees are kind of bruised," admitted pretty Judy Herrington of Atlanta, Chi Omega president.

That's due to the production line technique evolved to let the rushees meet the most rushees possible. Since Emory has no sorority houses, the parties were staged in classrooms, with the new girls seated along the wall and sorority members on their knees, rotating from girl to girl in quick conversation.

The parties are more work than play, everyone admits. In fact, for the first round—five afternoon and five evening parties—only ice water is served and from a perfectly plain paper cup. There are no decorations.

Parties gradually get more elaborate and by the time the five Thursday afternoon fetes rolled around, the sororities were allowed to spend $50 each for decorations and refreshments.

"The aim is to keep the sororities from trying to out-do each other," explains Miss Nina Rusk, dean of women.

And on $50, the ingenious co-eds rigged up attractive foreign decorations and costumes. The Tri Deltas came up with a circus party, complete with a parachute tent. Kappa Kappa Gammas rigged up a rustic oaken well for their Copenhagen-Kappahagen. Chi Omegas wore headscarves and knee-showing shimmies for their flapper party.

INTERNATIONAL

Delta Gammas went French; Alpha Chi Omegas, German; Alpha Epsilon Phi, oriental; and Alpha Delta Psi, Siamese.

Kappa Alpha Thetas took an Alice in Wonderland theme and Kappa Delta turned into demons for a Hades party.

Some 270 freshmen and transfer students started rush week this year, according to Dean Rusk, and about 200 wound up as pledges.

"The drop out picture doesn't mean they weren't accepted," the Dean explains. "Some of the new girls are married, others can't afford sororities and some wait a quarter to get started academically."

Unlike some schools, the Emory rush system doesn't call for a big wardrobe for the rushee.

CHOICES JUGGLED

The only dress-up parties come the final Saturday afternoon. Otherwise school clothes are in order.

Blue Ribbon Winner Is Little Imp

By YOLANDE GWIN
Constitution Garden Editor

The dictionary says that "imp" is a young or little devil. It is also the name of a miniature rose.

The accompanying picture shows "Red Imp" the blue ribbon winner belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steed of Fairburn.

"I planted the bush about three months ago," said Mrs. Steed.

4 INCHES TALL

"It is just four inches tall and the blooms are the size of a match head."

"According to the nursery, these miniatures are very hardy and will grow well in this climate."

"The only food we have given it is 6-8-6 fertilizer, and mulching of pine straw."

She's Driving Him
To Moon or Saloon

(Worried? Fretful? Easily annoyed? Write to worried, fretful, easily annoyed George, c/o The Atlanta Constitution, and see how far that gets you.)

DEAR GEORGE:

My husband always has been sort of a nut but I think he's getting worse. All he reads now is this goofy stuff about space and going to the moon. I throw these crazy magazines away but he brings them in faster than I can throw them out. Why would any normal man be interested in all this craziness about going to the moon anyhow?

DOWN TO EARTH

DEAR DOWN TO EARTH:

In your husband's case, I imagine he feels there might be a little peace there—or at least storage space for his magazines. Why don't you quit griping and let him enjoy his hobby? What are you trying to do—drive him away from the moon and into the saloon?

DEAR GEORGE:

How can I keep my small child off the telephone? I've lectured and lectured, but every time I take my eye off him there he is: right back on the telephone again. Is this a common problem?

BESS

DEAR BESS:

Buy him a little telephone of his own to talk on. I assume you mean talking on the phone, rather than sitting on it—if the latter is the case, buy him a little chair all his own before he grows up perching around like a parakeet.

Fair To Salute Homemakers

By BETTY CARROLLTON

Georgia's outstanding homemakers and the state's distaff leaders in community progress will share the honors spotlight to climax women's activities of the 1961 Southeastern Fair.

The home-front salute will bring together — for the first time — Homemaker of the Year district winners and presidents of the five sponsoring groups, leaders of the state's largest women's organizations.

District winners in the annual Homemaker of the Year search include Mrs. Jesse Bazemore, Sylvania; Mrs. George W. Carswell, Albany; Mrs. M. K. Dorsett, Byron; Mrs. Marjorie S. Harrison, Jonesboro; Mrs. Nat Wyatt, Decatur; Mrs. James L. Smith, Wrightsville; Mrs. Charles N. Inman, Marietta; Mrs. J. O. Smith, Brixton; Mrs. Elizabeth Kerr Weldon, Norcross; Mrs. J. T. Brown Jr., Elberton.

Sharing honors with them will be Mrs. E. O. Cabaniss, Maxeys, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. L. C. Seagraves, Hull, Georgia Home Demonstration Council; Mrs. Willett Robinson, Sylvania, Georgia Farm Bureau Women; Mrs. Ben C. Miller, Atlanta, United Church Women; Mrs. Joe Lewis, Swainsboro, Georgia Home Economics Association, State Department of Education.

Thumbnail sketches of the 10 district winners in the Homemaker of the Year search will appear in The Constitution Women's Section later this week.

At noon on Thursday, Oct. 5, the women and Miss Sallie Sanders of Royston, state president, Future Homemakers of America, will form a receiving line for the annual Homemakers' Day luncheon at the Fair Hall. After a conducted tour of the Home Building, honorees and luncheon guests will gather for the Homemakers' Day program at the Fair Center. Following a welcome by Southeastern Fair President E. S. Papy, each of the women's clubs' leaders will speak.

SEWING WINNERS

A highlight of the afternoon program will be a showing of the winning entries in the Ladies' Ready-To-Wear unit of the Creative Skills Department.

The program will be climaxed by the presentation of Georgia's homemaker of the year, who will be crowned by Miss Sanders. The homemaker will be honored at a tea later in the afternoon.

Special guests will include the following contest judges: Miss Elizabeth Parker, Atlanta, Georgia Home Economics Association; Dr. Harry Brown, Macon, Georgia Farm Bureau; Mrs. Chester Martin, Atlanta, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. James C. Malone, Atlanta, United Church Women of Georgia; W. A. Sutton, University of Georgia.

"We are as enthusiastic about the '61 Homemakers' Day as we were last year when Lady Bird Johnson crowned the winner," declared Mrs. Billie Towell, director of women's activities. "We see this as an ideal occasion not only to pay homage to our fine homemakers, but to show some appreciation for the splendid accomplishments of Georgia's women's organizations."

As a token of that appreciation, a silver gavel will be presented to each of the state presidents.

Hutch's Hodge-Podge

(Copyright 1961 by the New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—It was during the first All-Star game at San Francisco in mid-July that the initial inkling was received of the possibility of victory in the National League pennant race by the Cincinnati Reds.

At that time the Redlegs had a five-game lead on the Los Angeles Dodgers and visiting American Leaguers already had begun to wonder if it wasn't something of an optical illusion, one which would later be dispelled by reality. Unfamiliar with the other circuit, they asked questions about the surprising ball club that Fred Hutchinson was guiding.

Daley

"The Reds aren't the best ball club in the league," said Buzzie Bavasi, the general manager of the Dodgers, "but they are playing better ball than anyone else. Hutch has them believing in themselves. He's doing a marvelous job."

"Don't underestimate Hutch's contributions," said Birdie Tebbets, then vice president of the Braves. "He didn't start with much but he's gotten maximum results."

"Give all the credit to Hutch," said Danny Murtaugh, manager of the Pirates. "This is his baby."

Freddie Hutchinson is known in the trade as Old Stoneface. He has craggy features such as one would expect to find hewn in Mount Rushmore and is so formidable in appearance that he occasionally has petrified young ball players merely by glaring at them. He speaks with a ferocious earnestness and sincerity, a trait that makes him awfully convincing. His rages are monumental. But when the brown eyes start to twinkle, the devilment below is exposed and Hutch becomes warm and engaging.

"He's a happy guy inside," once explained the glib Joe Garagiola, the broadcaster, "only his face doesn't know it."

—He Sees No Luck in Reds' Drive

The consensus of experts and inepters alike—including this one—was that the Reds would finish sixth. How could there be any other choice? The Dodgers would win, going away. Scrambling for the runner-up spot would be the closely bunched Pirates, Braves, Cards and Giants.

Anyone with a grain of logic in his thinking apparatus had to consign the burghers from the American Rhineland to a lower echelon. They had only two top-flight players, Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson. They had no infield and no catching. They had one proven starting pitcher, Bob Purkey, and one proven reliever, Jim Brosnan. The rest of the staff showed Joey Jay, a failure at Milwaukee, and the homegrown untied kids, Jim O'Toole, Jim Maloney, Jay Hook and Ken Hunt. Yet Hutch worked magic with this odd assortment.

Fearsome Freddie offered a critique on his heroes when encountered last July. His words are just as valid now as they were then.

"There's nothing lucky about our being in first place," he said in his brisk, forthright fashion. "We're leading because we've got a pretty good ball club."

His jaw jutted as if daring anyone to contradict him. Arguing with Hutch can be highly unprofitable. Not only is he as big as a bear but he's as strong as one, too.

"The fact of the matter is," continued Hutch, eyes beginning to twinkle, "that I first got the idea in spring training. We sure didn't look like much in Florida but I could see enough to suspect that we had a pretty good ball club in the making. And that's the way it turned out."

—Jay Got Chance, Made '20 Club'

He almost made it sound simple.

"We have momentum, great desire—and ability," he added softly.

The astute handling by the manager brought out the best in everyone. His major rejuvenation job was with the 26-year-old Jay, a strong-armed kid who had been shunted aside and denied opportunity with the pitcher-rich Braves.

"From now on you'll get your chance," promised Hutch.

Jay became a 20-game winner. Purkey was solid all the way. The relief pair of Brosnan and Bill Henry did yeoman service. Hunt, not even on the roster, was an early sensation. The other kids performed well. The hodge-podge infield settled down, wavered, was juggled and survived a crisis.

In late July and early August it looked as though the Red bubble had burst permanently. When a team is playing over its head and the moment of truth arrives, there is usually capitulation. But Hutch would not let this happen, so blazing is his competitive instinct. For almost three weeks the Cincinnatians were out of first place.

Then Hutch made a couple of infield shifts, exhorted and drove. His own flame ignited the embers and the Reds were back in first place to stay. Even when Robinson faltered from carrying the club on his shoulders all year, Hutch coaxed his other pro, Pinson, to take over.

Remarkable is the managerial job done by Frederick Charles Hutchinson. He did the most with the least. It clearly entitles him to be designated as manager of the year.

Red Bogeys Block Road To Pennant

CINCINNATI (AP)—If the Cincinnati Reds win the National League championship on their own they'll have to do it against the two clubs that have caused them the most trouble this season.

The Reds, who have the "magic number" of two—Cincinnati victories and/or Los Angeles defeats—to clinch the pennant, will meet the Chicago Cubs at Chicago Tuesday and then will close out the season with three games at Pittsburgh Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Meanwhile the Dodgers have six games remaining with Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Chicago.

The Cubs, although buried deep in seventh place, hold a 12-9 margin over Cincinnati for the season. The Reds finally squeezed ahead of Pittsburgh on the season series last week when they swept a pair of games with the dethroned champs but the margin is only 10-9.

Manager Fred Hutchinson said he will pitch Bob Purkey against the Cubs Tuesday.

"I'll pitch Jim O'Toole, Joey Jay and Purkey in Pittsburgh," he added.

Pressure Mounting In Maris' HR Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris and the New York Yankees return to Yankee Stadium Tuesday night for the last five games of the season with Maris still looking for that magic No. 60 in the home run race. Maris hit his 59th last Wednesday in Baltimore.

Baltimore will provide the opposition Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon. After an off day Thursday, the Yanks will finish up at home with Boston Friday night and single day games Saturday and Sunday.

Manager Ralph Houk gave the team a day off Monday before they start tuning up for the World Series opening Wednesday, Oct. 4 at the Stadium, presumably against Cincinnati.

Maris still is feeling the pressure of the home run race. Day by day his chances of becoming the first man since Ruth to hit 60 homers grow slimmer and slimmer.

"The way things are going I don't even think I'll hit 60 by the end of the season," he said Monday. "Right now, I'd have to say the odds are against me even though I've got five games left, all in New York. My only hope, it seems, is to wait for them

OLD-TIMERS' GREATNESS FORGED OUT OF HARDSHIPS

By TY COBB WITH AL STUMP

Let a modern-day player develop a bit of indignation or a minor bone chip in his arm, and he's clamped into a bed at Johns Hopkins, attended by world-noted specialists, fed by dieticians, and generally treated like a maharaja with the gout. His team pays all the bills. In my day a sick ballplayer was just another liability—unless he got himself well in a hurry and cheaply. As a new boy who didn't know how to protest, I even paid my own hospital tab on one occasion.

I'd been with the Tigers little more than a year when a "slider"—an abrasion caused by hitting the hard infield dirt too often in base-steals—became inflamed and filled with pus. Did Frank Navin, the Detroit president, offer me any assistance? Not a nickel's worth. At a Fort Street hospital the wound was lanced and drained, and I paid for the privilege, at a time when I was earning $2,400 a season. Navin visited me just once while I was invalidated and kept both hands in his pockets, clutching his bankroll, throughout.

Split a finger 50 years ago, and you stuck it in the dirt and kept going. It gives me a laugh to hear players today complain about the conditions they labor under. They even find certain parks of the 1960s "tough to play in." In 1907 old Bennett Park in Detroit, as well as other arenas, sprouted grass which had been planted at the wrong time of year and was cow-pasture rough and rutted with holes and soft spots. Where the infield grass met the skinned infield area, there were drop-offs that sent balls flying in all directions. Diamonds were given a quick once-over with a rake maybe once a week, where these days they are scientifically planted, cultivated,

How Good Are Jackets? Rice Could Give Answer

Tech Drills Calm, Quiet

By TED SIMMONS

Georgia Tech, getting back into the Rose Bowl Field routine after a glorious, victorious trip to Southern California, took it fairly easy Monday afternoon, leaving onlookers plenty of time for speculation.

The big question naturally was, just how good are the Jackets? The inevitable answer: we'll know about 4:30 Saturday afternoon.

Agreement seemed to be general that Tech, despite Disneyland, Paramount and the Coconut Grove, was simply more ready to play football than was Southern Cal last Friday night.

No one expects a recurrence of the same situation this week. Rice Saturday night convinced everyone within hailing distance that it's about as ready as you can get. And besides the Owls have a score to settle with Tech, namely a 16-13 defeat last year in which Rice partisans thought Tech received more than its share of good fortune.

Coach Bobby Dodd missed Monday's practice because of a speaking engagement, leaving such stand-ins as Coaches Tonto Coleman, Jack Griffin, Charlie Tate, Lew Woodruff, Buck Andel, Ned West and Ed Miles (as well as visitors Fred Russell and Col. Ed Danforth, to run the shop.

The regulars ran through limbering-up work and no-contact drills, and polished it off with running sprints. Those on the varsity who didn't play against the Trojans engaged the frosh in a short scrimmage.

Godfrey Now No. 2 Fullback

By AL THOMY

Georgia football coaches moved swiftly Monday to remedy glaring weaknesses of last week with two changes in personnel.

Sophomore Richard Boykin, 5-8, 168-pounder from Sylvania, was elevated to the first team at left halfback, and senior fullback Bill Godfrey of Charlotte, N.C., moved back in contention at the No. 2 plunging post.

In the new order of things, Boykin is ahead of Jim Mooney, 5-11, 158-pound junior from Charlotte, and Don Blackburn, last week's starter against Alabama. Mooney did not play in the Alabama game because of injury.

Godfrey, who reported with a weight problem this fall but has since reduced the excess poundage, moved ahead of sophomore Mack Faircloth of Moultrie and behind senior Wayne Taylor of Port St. Joe, Fla. Coaches figure his experience is needed in the young backfield.

"We are trying to get some speed in that first backfield," acting head coach John Gregory said Monday. "We also want to find out who wants to play football."

Monday was not a day of rest on Ag Hill.

The Bulldogs spent two hours on pass defense, covering punts and other weaknesses that showed up last Saturday.

Morton Clips Shaw's Gem

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Veteran right-hander Bob Shaw of the Kansas City Athletics defeated the Detroit Tigers 6-3 Monday night on a three-hitter, Bubba Morton spoiling his bid for a no-hitter with a line single to center in the ninth inning.

Going into the ninth Shaw struck out five Detroit batters, walked three and hit one with a pitch.

RICHARD BOYKIN

... Moves Up at LH

"Alabama really hurt us on a couple of passes," Gregory said, "and we know Vanderbilt will throw a lot more than Bama this weekend. Our own passing attack also underwent a lot of study and work. At least half of our practice period was spent in passing."

"We were not at all pleased with our kicking coverage Saturday and this too got a long look."

"It is our plan to hold a long offensive scrimmage Tuesday. There are a lot of things we've got to straighten out in this department."

The nature of the operation at Athens this week will be work ... hard work.

Rice End Raesz Is Injured

Vandy Loses Dan Boone

HOUSTON (AP)—Rice suffered a blow at its thinnest position Monday when the Owls learned Gene Raesz, starting right end, may be out for two weeks.

X rays showed Raesz broke a small bone in his right hand during Rice's 16-3 victory over Louisiana State Saturday night.

Doctors decided the injured hand will probably keep Raesz out of Saturday's Georgia Tech game.

The Owls have been without their regular No. 2 end, Tommy Rees, since a knee injury took him out at the start of fall practice.

Walter Lignon, a right guard, will also miss the game because of a knee injury.

The Rice reserves went through a quick scrimmage that produced even more bad news. Pat Gerald, a third string center, hurt a foot.

Rough Work Today

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Vanderbilt's football squad had what Coach Art Guepe called a "comprehensive" workout Monday as it prepared for its first Southeastern Conference game of the season Saturday against Georgia.

"We went over most of the offense we plan to use," said Guepe. He added he plans rough work for the squad Tuesday.

Working in light tugs because of injuries but expected to play against Georgia were: reserve quarterback Jon Cleveland, injured wrist; tackle Wayne Hall, bruised leg; guard Tom Kenny, bad ankle.

Out of the Georgia game with unhealed injuries are fullback Jim Johnson who suffered a shoulder separation more than a week ago, and tackle Dan Boone who reinjured his foot against West Virginia last weekend.

SEC—Lindy Infante, a halfback who wasn't figured above second string in Florida plans, took over the Southeastern Conference scoring lead this week, with three touchdowns over Clemson in Saturday's opener. The 178-pound junior scored just one touchdown in 1960. Alabama's Mike Fraechia, an 185-pound fullback, is second with 12 points on the TDs against Georgia. Georgia Tech's Billy Lettridge is third with nine points, two field goals and three extra points. . . . Sophomore Fred Pearson has been moved up to the No. 1 left tackle at Florida, to replace injured Floyd Dean. Guard John Dent has been moved to tackle from guard in another Gator switch. Quarterback Larry Libertore is improving, but his ankle is still a little sore.

3-AAA, 4-AAA SCORING

Arnold's Two TDs Grab Point Lead

By PAUL ATKINSON

Okay, so Roger Maris is going like 60. Sprayberry's Tommy Arnold went like 73 and 81 yards Friday to vault into the 4-AAA high school scoring lead with 36 points.

The two touchdowns keyed Sprayberry's first victory over Marietta, 13-0. Avondale's David Neville, unleashing a three-touchdown assault on Athens, and his Blue Devil colleague Mike Thompson, who got one touchdown, moved into a two-way tie for second place at 30 points.

North Fulton's Mike Russ attacked Marietta for two touchdowns and holds the 3-AAA lead with 37 points. Brown's Billy Kinard, scoring two touchdowns in a game for the third straight week, leaped into the No. 2 spot with 26 points. Northside's Frank Purvis is third with 29 points, on three touchdowns and 11 extra points.

CONSTITUTION PREP RANKINGS

Decatur Powers Way Into 'Big 10'

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Gainesville took over the top spot in Class AA and previously unranked Benedictine vaulted all the way to fourth place in AAA in The Constitution's weekly Georgia high school football ratings over the week-end.

Those improbable eventualities came to pass as a result of Benedictine's scissoring of Waycross' 15-game winning string Saturday night, 22-0, although the result cannot be considered so tremendously shocking as many people believe. Vic Mell's winning Cadets admittedly were good, big, strong and swift.

Gainesville wallowed Madison County, 44-0, for its third lopsided victory and vacated second place to Waycross, still undoubtedly a top power in the state.

Benedictine was one of six teams that ousted previously ranked eleven from "Big Ten" listings in various classifications. The others were Decatur, Cartersville, Treutlen County, Warren County and Evans.

Richmond Academy, Carrollton, Fort Valley and Coosa downed Riverside, 33-0; Bowdon, 20-0; Jackson, 20-0; and Johnson, 31-0, and retained their top spots in AAA, A, B and C divisions.

Decatur overpowered highly regarded Southwest DeKalb, 47-0, and claimed ninth spot in AAA. There were newcomers in AA, but Cartersville rocked Rockmart, 19-6, and moved into eighth place in A.

Treutlen County of Soperton shocked previously unconquered Hawkinsville, 19-14, and gained sixth slot in B as Hawkinsville fell from the lists from seventh. Warren County and Evans tripped Harlem, 20-7, and Wadley, 27-6, and settled in C's 9 and 10 holes.

Several teams tumbled a few rungs down the ladder more because of what their nearest rivals accomplished than because they themselves faltered. This was particularly true in the AAA shake-up.

No team came close to ousting Richmond Academy or second-place Valdosta, 42-14 conqueror of Jordan. But Albany whipped Warner Robins, 26-13, and edged ahead two slots to third, and Avondale and Northside dropped to fifth and sixth from third and fourth despite 34-7 and 42-0 beltings of Athens and George.

R. E. Lee remained seventh after a 32-7 shellacking of Druid Hills, and Moultrie jumped two pegs to eighth on a 33-6 tanning of Thomasville. Brown whipped Dykes, 47-0, but tumbled two pegs to 10th as Murphy was edged from the list despite a 42-0 racking of Smith.

Cairo and Bainbridge thumped tough Tallahassee, Fla., Leon and Crisp County, 26-19 and 38-0, to leapfrog into AA's third and fourth places ahead of Rossville, 13-0 loser to Chattanooga, Tenn., City High. Cedartown, 32-0 winner over Calhoun, climbed two spots to sixth ahead of Fairburn Campbell, tied by Troup, 14-14. Troup gained a step to eighth. And Tifton, 7-0 victor over Cook, fell two stairs to ninth ahead of Westminster, 14-7 winner over Sandy Springs.

The first seven teams in Class A held what they had. Behind Carrollton come Americus, Ware County and Statesboro, 51-6, 31-0 and 39-7 victors over Worth County, Jeff Davis and Cochran.

Idle Toccoa vaulted to ninth past St. Pius, tied by Central Gwinnett, 7-7. Lowndes County dropped from listing via a 33-6 setback at Thomasville Central.

Washington-Wilkes leaptfrogged three places to second

"The formal marriage proposal, faithfully observed in bygone years, is almost outmoded. Usually there is a mutual understanding, skillfully arrived at by the woman's lead and direction."—Article quote.

A boy grows up to be a man... A girl grows up (but not the same)... For each girl does the best she can... To find one who will change her name... But boys are not aware of this... They do not know they are pursued... Until they're captured by some Miss... Whose motives they have misconstrued.

You often hear a young man boast... About the joys of single-life... While every girl thinks it's the most... Important thing, to be a wife... She may be dumb, in some respects... But in this little game she plays... Observe how smoothly she directs... A man along her chosen ways.

What did you say, when you proposed?... I'll bet you can't recall a word... And should the secret be disclosed... You'd swear nobody ever heard... You say such foolish things as that... But, there you are, a married man... Growing old and gray and fat... And still conforming to her plan.

East pulled off a highly ingenious bit of deception today to defeat a vulnerable slam contract that was virtually in the bag.

South opened the bidding with one heart and North responded with two diamonds. South's rebid of two spades shows considerable strength inasmuch as partner is forced into the three level to show a preference for hearts. When North jumped to four spades, South embarked on a Blackwood campaign. Finding that the partnership lacked an ace he settled for a small slam.

West, with his utterly hopeless hand, opened the six of diamonds and dummy played the jack. To East, this was marked beyond any question as a singleton, for the only diamond out of view was the nine, which was obviously held by declarer, for West would hardly have led the six from a holding of nine-six. If East won the trick with the queen and returned the suit, declarer might be put on guard as to the impending danger and ruff high enough to shut out West. East therefore set up a smoke screen by winning with the ace and returning the four. There seemed to be no doubt that the queen of diamonds was in the West hand, so declarer is hardly to be taken to task for discarding on the diamond return. When West ruffed in, South had a rude awakening.

I suppose that purists will point out that South might just as well have ruffed the return with the seven of spades and perhaps they are right but, I for one am not going to hold this against South's record for department. I shall look upon him as an outraged victim.

Good HealthChest Pain
No Proof Of Angina

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Five years ago I started having slight chest pains which led me to believe I had some sort of heart disease.

I went to a specialist, had an electrocardiogram and X rays, etc. The doctor assured me my heart was in perfect condition and that the pains were due to nervousness and muscle strain.

I am 26 years old.

Some time ago I read about a disease known as 'angina pectoris.' I find that all the symptoms I have add up to this. Now, since I've been told repeatedly that my nerves are causing the pains and discomfort, is it possible angina pectoris would be overlooked even by a heart specialist?

Or can a nervous and tense person such as I am really have pains which copy the exact symptoms of other diseases?—Mrs. D. O.

It's possible you might have angina pectoris but I strongly doubt it.

I don't mean you don't have pains but in my considered opinion they are not related to the heart.

For one thing, your age is against heart trouble. It's rare at 26, and it's very much rarer at 21, when you first started worrying. Another reason is that you did not list any one of the various prime symptoms of angina pectoris, and I'm certainly not going to tell you what they are.

It is most unlikely that a heart specialist would miss what I've noticed in your letter. The facts simply don't fit heart disease but for some reason you are bound and determined to have it anyway.

Several decades from now, you will have a pretty good statistical chance, because heart disease is the most prevalent of all serious ailments, outnumbering substantially even the No. 2 problem, cancer.

In view of this, I'm opposed to tolerating any imaginary heart cases. We have real ones. But it seems to me every doctor has a duty to speak up strongly whenever it looks as though people are trying to scare themselves into thinking they have something that they don't have.

What is Addison's disease?—M. G.

It's a deficiency or inadequate activity of the adrenal glands.

Dr. Molner regrets he is unable to answer individual letters. He uses readers' letters in his column when possible.

Announcing the first major tooth paste advance since fluoride... now IPANA has Hexa-Fluoride ^{*T.M.}

How brushing with new Ipana helps you protect your gums as you protect your teeth

Dental authorities agree—you can lose more teeth from gum troubles than from tooth decay

According to published reports, gum troubles are often caused by tartar that forms on teeth when soft film is not properly cleansed away. And dental statistics prove it is gum troubles, not tooth decay, that cause most loss of teeth after age 14. So don't do just half the job. Protect your gums as you protect your teeth.

If you brush properly with new Ipana with Hexa-Fluoride, you can help prevent gum trouble due to tartar before it starts. Ipana's film-removing agents help you brush away the soft film that naturally forms on teeth before it hardens into tartar that irritates and inflames gums.

Only your dentist or dental hygienist can remove tartar from your teeth once it hardens. But you should know this: proper brushing, according to Ipana directions, can help prevent tartar before it attacks your gums.

A superior decay-fighter, too—destroys more decay bacteria than any other leading brand

New Ipana now contains Hexa-Fluoride, the first major tooth paste advance since the introduction of fluoride. It helps you fight tooth decay because it is a combination of both hexachlorophene and fluoride—a fluoride accepted by Public Health Authorities for use in drinking water.

Ipana with hexachlorophene destroys millions of decay germs with each brushing. And fluoride strengthens the enamel of your teeth.

So proper brushing with new Ipana with exclusive Hexa-Fluoride helps protect you now... and in the future, too.

Laboratory tests prove that Ipana with Hexa-Fluoride has more decay-germ killing power than any other leading tooth paste, fluoride or not! Get new Ipana for your family. Look for the name "Hexa-Fluoride" on the Ipana carton. If your store doesn't have "Hexa-Fluoride" right now, it will soon.
